INTRODUCTION

This work was begun many years since in an attempt by the author to trace the descent of his ancestor, the Rev. David Youngs, from the Rev. John Youngs, first minister of Southold, L. I. Later, this was enlarged to include all the male descendants of the Rev. John Youngs, and, still later, to its present scope.

The early history of the family was shrouded in mystery, and it has required much study and extensive research in England and in this country to rescue it from tradition and oblivion.

In Southold, L. I., a knowledge of their English ancestor and of the place in England from whence they came had utterly vanished.

In 1844 there was published in the Long Island "Star," an article in which it was stated that there was "an immense amount of property in England to the family of Youngs in North America, according to record and history," and that the "Rev. John Youngs came from Hingham, England, and had sons John, Thomas, Gideon, and Benjamin," etc. This statement reflects the belief of the family at that time, but the first part is without foundation, and the latter part is only partly correct.

While this was true as to Southold, yet a knowledge of their English ancestor was preserved in the family of Seth Youngs, who had removed to Connecticut in 1736, and a record of it was made by his son, Calvin Youngs, in his Bible. (See p. 35.)

Doubtless Bible family records were kept by the early generations, but none earlier than the fifth generation have come down to us. Prior to this we have in America three family records entered in town records, viz., Christopher Youngs, No. 6; Benjamin Youngs, No. 34, and Benjamin Youngs, No. 37. Abundant material of that period, however, has been found in church and town records, deeds, wills and cemetery inscriptions, to make a fairly complete and authentic record.

Fortunately the author became interested in the family history at an early age, when there were members of the family living who were born before the Revolutionary War, and from them he learned much of the history and traditions of the family which otherwise would have perished with them.

The line of English descent is determined by the coat-of-arms on the seal on the will of Col. John Youngs, known as the Tudor Trevor arms, and shows descent from him, through the Yonges of Brynyorken.

The chapters on "Welsh Ancestry" and "Welsh Pedigrees" are introduced to satisfy a natural curiosity regarding our Welsh ancestors. The Pedigrees are from the reports of the commissioners sent to Wales by Henry VII (Henry Tudor), to establish his own ancestry.

For five generations the Youngs were leading men in Southold, Long Island.

Rev. John Youngs was the "first settler," and the leading spirit of the town. His son, Col. John Youngs, was the most prominent man on Long Island, in the entire colonial period; and the latter's brother, Benjamin Youngs, was the town clerk and recorder. Both of them were patentees of the town. In the next generation Benjamin Youngs (son of Christopher) was captain of the militia company, town clerk, recorder, and judge. In the next generation Joshua Youngs was a judge and Rev. David Youngs was the first after Rev. John Youngs to enter the ministry. Thomas Youngs (son of Judge Joshua) was a judge and a member of the State Assembly.

The Youngs commenced early to migrate from Southold, and for several generations there have been few of the name in Southold proper. They are numerous in Greenport and Orient, to the east, and at Aquebogue, Northville, Riverhead and other towns to the west; but the greater number are spread out over all the Union.

Two noticeable characteristics of the family are sobriety and longevity. Many have lived to ninety years of age, several to more than ninety-five, and one (No. 102) to beyond her hundredth year; but their distinguishing trait is their strong religious feeling, which they inherited from their English ancestor. This has persisted through the generations and almost universally been the controlling influence in their lives, moulding their characters and making them peaceable, law-abiding citizens, many of whom have had a prominent part in the development and history of the country.

"Golden Weddings" have been of frequent occurrence, and there are two instances (No. 665 and No. 898) of sixty-seven years of married life. The last survivor of the seventh generation was Mrs. Ezra Hallock, nee Lydia Emily Young, who died March 27th, 1898, at the age of ninety-five years.

Either personally or by letters, the author has had many inquiries regarding the history of the family, and early times in Southold, and, believing that this information will not only be interesting, but foster an honorable pride in the family, he has given a brief historical outline under appropriate chapter headings.

In collecting these records, many valued friendships have been made, and many kindly greetings received, which have been a constant help and inspiration. The author appreciates the willingness with which the members of the family have furnished their records, and he is under especial obligations to Mrs. Cordelia Young Willard, Mrs. Elmira Young Tuthill, Mrs.

George Wilson Smith, Miss Harriet N. Youngs, Miss Sadie E. Rackett, Mr. Elijah Ford Young, deceased, and Mr. James F. Young, for the principal records for their branches, and to the last mentioned for valued assistance on indices.

Through the kindness of Mr. J. Cummings Vail, he had access to the records collected in 1858 by his father, Mr. Alfred Vail, and Mr. Charles B. Moore placed at his disposal his MSS. Indexes of 1730 and 1775, and gave him other valuable information.

To Mr. Charles H. Young, of New York, he is indebted for long continued interest and assistance, and to Mr. E. F. C. Young, of Jersey City, N. J., for financial aid in its publication.

In placing this work in possession of the family the author expresses the hope that it will find a welcome in their homes, and be handed down to future generations.

Very sincerely yours,

SELAH YOUNGS, JR.

THE NAME AND NATIONALITY.

LA JEUNE, YONGE, YONGES, YOUNGES, YOUNGS, YOUNG, YONG.

The name has its origin in the youth of the first bearers of the name; and its French equivalent, "La Jeune," is a very common name in France.

The Youngs appear to have been Norman French, and to have come over in the train of William the Conqueror, and settled in various parts of England and Wales.

In the early English records we have the names, "William le Yonge," "John le Yonge," "Richard le Yonge" and "Ralph le Younge;"* and the Youngs of Kingerby, County Lincoln, had for their motto "Tojours Jeune."†

About the middle of the fourteenth century Ierwerth ap Morgan, a descendant of Tudor Trevor, of Wales, married "Margaret," daughter and heiress of William Yonge de Sawardek, County Salop, and took the name of Yonge for a surname.‡

The Welsh and English pedigrees and coats of arms show the parties to this marriage to be the ancestors of Rev. Christopher Yonges, Vicar of Southwold and Reydon, England, and therefore the family in the male line are Welsh, and are descended from Tudor Trevor, and the ancient rulers of Wales.

In the pedigrees of the descendants of Ierwerth and "Marget Yonge" the name is spelled both "Yonge" and "Yong."

The family records of Vicar Christopher Yonges in the parish register of Southwold, England, and the wills of himself and wife, show the name spelled, "Yong," "Yonge," "Yonges," "Younges" and "Youngs."

In America the descendants of Vicar Yonges, for the first century, spelled the name "Youngs," "Younges," "Young" and "Yong." Since that time they have only spelled the name "Youngs" and "Young."

WELSH ANCESTRY.

The Welsh came originally from Asia, and were of the Aryan family. They invaded Eastern Europe about 1500 B. C., and were termed by the Greeks Galatæ, by the Romans Galli or Celts (Celts or Kelts). They were driven westward, and settled in Spain, North Italy, France, Belgium, and the British Isle; and were the first civilized inhabitants of England and Wales. Before their superior arms and prowess the aborigines of the stone and flint ages disappeared.

In the intervening centuries, prior to the Roman occupation, they spread over England and Wales, and Scotland as far north as the Firths of Forth and Clyde. It was between these Firths that the Romans, about 80 A. D., erected the Roman wall, to defend Britain from the incursions of the Picts and Scots.

The ancient name of this territory was Cambria (the land of the Cymri), and later the Romans gave to it the name of Britain.

The earliest records of the history of Britain are the manuscripts and poetry of the Cambrians, who were the ancestors of the Britons and modern Welsh.

In the year 55 B. C., the Romans, under Julius Cæsar, invaded Britain, and, after being held at bay for eight years, conquered the Silures, a tribe inhabiting the Counties of Monmouth and Hereford. The renowned King Caractacus was captured, through treachery, by the Roman general Astorius Scapulo, and taken in chains to Rome to grace the triumph of his captor.

After holding Britain in subjection for over four hundred years, the Romans, about 410 A. D., gradually retired.

The leaving of the Romans was followed by an attack on the Britons by the Picts and Scots. Vortigern, who was the sovereign of the Dimetae and overlord, or supreme ruler of Britain, invited the Saxons over to defend his country, but the Saxons perfidiously sent for reinforcements, consisting of Saxons, Danes, and Angles, and drove the Britons to the West of England and into Wales.

At this time Gwyneth, or the Snowdon district (North Wales), was in possession of the Decangi, a Goidelic tribe; Powys, the extensive Berwin district, bordering on the West of England, was ruled by the Ordovices, a Brythonic tribe. In Dyfed and Cardigan Por, the Plinlimmon district, lived the Demetia, a Goidelic tribe; and Morganweg and Gwent, the Black Mountain district, were the home of the dark Silures, who were a Goidelic tribe. These two kindred races, the Goidels, and Brythons, struggled bitterly against each other for the sovereignty over this territory.

The Welshman's pedigree was his title deed, by which he claimed his birth-right in the country. Everyone was obliged to show his descent through nine generations in order to be acknowledged a free native, and by this he claimed his portion of land in the community. A person past the ninth descent formed a new head of a family; and every family was represented by its elder, who was a delegate to the National Council. Among a people where surnames were not in use,^a and where the right of property depended on descent, an attention to pedigree was indispensable; hence the second order of Bards, or Herald Bards, whose duty it was to register pedigrees and arms. Cynwrig ap (son of) Gronw, who lived about the year 145 A. D., was a Bard.

It is from these ancient manuscripts, pedigrees, and coats of arms, and the family pedigrees taken by the County Visitations, that we learn somewhat of the history of our Welsh ancestors, their line of descent and inter-marriage with the Youngs.

By the use of a certain coat of arms one asserts one's descent from the person to whom those arms were granted, confirmed or allowed. Col. John Youngs, of the second generation in America, placed the Tudor Trevor coat upon his will in 1697.*

The arms of Tudor Trevor are, "Per bend sinister Erm and Ermines a lion rampant or,"† and these as chief arms or quarterings have been borne by his descendants of various names for centuries.

Tudor Trevor, Lord of Whittington, Oswestry and both Maelors in Powys, in right of his father; founder of the "Tribe of the Marches";^b King of Gloster and Earl of Hereford in right of his mother; surnamed Trevor from the place of his birth, Co. Denbigh; son of Ynyr (Honorius) by Reyngar his wife; married Angaret (or Gladwin), daughter of Howell Dha.

The ancestry of Tudor Trevor, and of his wife Angaret, as given in these ancient records, extend back through these lines of Welsh rulers to the time of the Roman supremacy.

Tudor (Theodore) Trevor, on his father's side was descended from Fernvail, King of Gwent and Monmouth, whose son, Vortigern, was betrayed by the Saxons and driven into Wales, where he built a citadel in Carnarvonshire, on the Snowdon Mountain. This mountain was held as sacred, and it was said that whoever slept upon it would wake inspired.

^a Surnames came into use about the year 1000.

^b An appellation derived from the numerous families in the Marches of Wales.

*Original will on file in Surrogate's Office, N. Y.

†Burke's Genl. Armory.

"When all was still
 On Snowdon's Hill
 Was heard a magic sound,
 'Twas Merlin's voice
 Made men rejoice
 And sent its echoes round."

From Vortigern was descended Catel-Tigern-Lug, 450 A. D., and from his son Gwnfiew frych the line follows on down through under chieftains or Iarlls to Tudor Trevor.

Rheingar, mother of Tudor Trevor, and daughter and heiress of Llud-docka, King of Gloster and Earl of Hereford, was descended from Carradawc (or Caradoc) Freichfras (him of the brawny arm), Earl of Hereford and King of Cornwall, 542 A. D., whose mother was Ysenne or St. Gwendolen, or Gwent, the beautiful niece of King Arthur.

Sir Caradoc was a Knight of King Arthur's Round Table; and his wife Tegan Euervron (Tegan of the golden breast), daughter of the King of Cornwall, was one of the three fairest women of King Arthur's Court, and was the lady who gained the horn and mantle, as the prize of her chastity, because she could drink from the one and wear the other.

"Sir Caradoc called his lady,
 And bade her to come neare
 * * * *
 When she had tane the mantle
 And put it on her back,
 Most rich and fair of collor,
 Like gold it glittering shone,
 And much the Knights in Arthur's Court
 Admired her everyone."

Side by side with these lines was that of Cunnedda and his descendants, the ancestors of Tudor Trevor's wife Angharet.

Cunnedda, King of Cumbria, Strathclyde and part of Wales, was the son of the Roman Aeternus (Edern), who married a Brython, Gwawl, the daughter of Coel Coedhbawg, the King of Coelin, since called Kyle in the present county of Ayr, Scotland. This Coel is the old King Cole of tradition.

Aeternus was the son of Paternus (Padern) Bisrud, Bisrud meaning him of the red tunic, as he had worn the official purple, and was Dux Britanniae in command of the forces on the Wall.

Cunnedda was also in command on the Wall, but, after the Romans left, was driven south by the Saxons and Danes into Wales, where he made Deganwy his chief seat of power.

From him was descended a long line of rulers, who maintained his power for nine centuries, through Malgwan, Cadwallon, Cadwaladr, Phodri, Molywnog, Rhodri the Great, Howell Dha, etc., until it fell in the person of Llewelyn III, Dec. 11, 1282.

However much of fable is interwoven in these Welsh Triads, or to what extent these pedigrees are fiction, is of but little importance, but it is of value that, through centuries of toil and strife, they laid the foundations on which the progress of civilization has been made.

Tudor Trevor's chief seat was Whittington Castle, of which he is said to be the founder. He died in 948.

It was not until some generations later that his descendants adopted surnames.

Of these, Thomas, in the time of Henry VIII, took the name of Mostyn (Moisten), from the place of his birth.*

Edward, who married Ankeret, daughter of Robert Puleston, had a son John, who took the name of Trevor. He was seated at Brynkenalt, and died in 1494.*

This family, it is claimed, was the last to occupy Dinas Bran, the ancient residence of the Lords of Powys, and perhaps the most proudly perched castle in Britain. A few fagots kindled on its lonely heights in a trice would have all Powys and half of Shropshire in arms.

From Tudor Trevor's son, Dyngod, through Ednyfed Vychan, was descended Owen, who married Catherine of Valois, widow of Henry V, and took the name of Tudor for a surname.

Their grandson, Henry Tudor, a Welshman, leading a Welsh army, defeated and slew Richard III, on Bosworth Field, and became Henry VII.

In him was fulfilled the prophecy that a Welshman was to become King of England, which had failed in Llewelyn and Owen Glendower.

From Tudor Trevor's son, Lluddocka, was descended (eleven generations removed) Ierwerth ap Morgan, who, about the middle of the fourteenth century, married Marget, daughter and heiress (only child) of William Yonge de Sawardek† (Willi le Yonge de Shirawarden Co. Salop),‡ and took the name of Yonge for a surname.

Heraldry was borrowed by the Welsh from the Normans, after 1066 A.D., and they proceeded to adopt coats of arms, which they assigned to their most illustrious ancestors, and bore themselves.

Of these arms, the descendants of Tudor Trevor are entitled to bear, either as chief arms or quarterings, the "lion rampant" coat of Caradoc Vreichfras and Tudor Trevor;§ the "three nags heads" coat of Brochwel Ysgathrog; the "three roses" coat of Cunnedda|| and of Rhodri Mawr;§ the "three lions passant" coat of Howel Dda;§ and several others.

Tudor Trevor=Angharet

DESCENT FROM TUDOR TREVOR.

BY THE NAME OF YONGE.

Of this Ierwerth and Yonge marriage, we have the name of only one son, Morgan Yonge, and of him only one son, Jenkin Yonge, who had sons Lewys Yonge and Morrys Yonge.*

Morgan Yonge accompanied John of Gaunt to Spain, and was granted lands for having taken prisoner a Spanish grandee of great note, whose arms, "gu, a torse, or," he was permitted to bear in augmentation of his own arms.†

In 1389, Morgan Yonge, Owen Glendore (the Welsh hero), John de Hanmer, and others, testified in the celebrated Grosvenor vs. Scrope heraldic controversy.‡

There were other sons in these first three generations. Jenkin Yonge had a son Gwilim (William) Yong, whose descendants settled in Pembrokeshire, County Devon, and bore the Tudor Trevor coat.§

Dr. Gruffydd (Gruffyth or Griffeth) Yong, Archdeacon of Merioneth, an ecclesiastic, was probably a son of Ierwerth or of Morgan Yonge. He affiliated with, and in 1404, at Dolgelly, became the Chancellor of Owen Glendore,|| who was also of the great border race of Tudor Trevor.

John Young, alias Morgan, a Welshman, Dean of Windsor in 1484, Bishop of St. David's, Devon, 1496 to 1505, seems to be of this family. His will, April 24, 1504; proved May 19, 1504; might give valuable information.¶

The descendants of the brothers, Lewys and Morrys Yonge, are partially given through five generations. Lewys had a son Griffeth, who had a son John Yonge de Hanmer, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Randal Dymock.*

Morrys Yonge was seated at Brynyorkin in Hopedale, County Flint, and his arms are recorded as follows: "Yong, (Morris Yong ap Janken, ap Morgan, ap Yerw (Ierwerth), descended from Tudor Trevor, who was Earl of Hereford in right of his mother), Per bend sinister Erm and Ermines, a lion rampant or." The Brynyorkin Yonges also bore on their shield the arms of Elidr ap Rys Sais, Brochmail Ysgathrog, Yong, Sandd Hardd and Phillip Byrd.*

||Life of Owen Glendore Bradley, p. 226.

¶Burke's Genl. Armory, and Wood's Athenae ii, p. 694.

Burke's Genl. Armory.

Morris Yong's son Richard, in the reign of Henry VII, had lands given him in Maelor, and had a son, Edward, who succeeded to the entailed estates at Brynyorkin.* This Edward Yong was the father of Ellis Yong, of Hopedale, whose eldest son, Sir Richard Yonge, was gentleman of the bed-chamber to King James I. The line of inheritance was in this branch, and they bore the Tudor Trevor arms, and had for their motto "Toujours jeune."†

Henry, a younger son of Morris Yonge, was seated at Poulton com Seacomb, County Chester, and his grandson, "Henry Yonge gent," bore the Tudor Trevor arms, differenced ("Per pale Erm and Ermines, a lion ramp or"), which was confirmed to him, June 10th, 1625.‡

From Lewys or Morris Yonge are descended the Yonges who bear the three griffins heads arms, which was granted to them in 1583.§ (The Poole House family quarter these arms with the three roses arms, and also have the "wolf passant sable" crest of the Yonges of Moore and Kenton.)|| A distinguished branch of this line settled in Colyton, Devon.||

The Yonges of Moore and Kenton, Shropshire County Salop (which was the seat of power of the Tudor Trevor sept before they were driven into Wales), bore the three roses coat, and had the "wolf passant sable" crest. These arms antedated the time of granting arms, and are the arms assigned to Cunnedda and Rhodri Mawr, who were the ancestors of Tudor Trevor's wife Angharet, and indicates the line of descent, through Tudor Trevor.

Galfridus (Godfrey or Jeffrey) Yonge, the progenitor of this branch, was, doubtless, a son of Ierwerth or Morgan Yonge, and in the eighth generation of his pedigree we have the name of Willimus Yonge of Kenton, Sheriff in 1548 and living in 1584; and of his brother, Georgius Yonge, seated at Ashburton, Devon, and having sons Christopher Yonge, Thomas Yonge (married and having a family), and Willimus Yonge.††

Additions were made to this pedigree by the visitations of 1623, but, at the point where the record of George Yonge should continue, a leaf has been cut out in the Shrewsbury M. S., which, no doubt, contained George Yonge and his descendants, as well as the arms and quarterings.††

The will of George Yonge was proved in 1555.‡‡

This Christopher, son of George Yonge, is doubtless the "Christopher Younge, Master of Arts," who was "instituted Vicar of Ashburton, Devon, Jan. 22, 1566-7,"§§ and also, "instituted Vicar of Ermington, Devon, April 17, 1572,"§§ He held these appointments until his death in 1577,§§ and his will was proved in that year.‡‡

A Christopher Younge was elected Chaplain of Windsor, March 6, 1567-8, on the resignation of John Hood.* Either he or another Christopher Younge's was Vicar of Brotherton, Yorks, in 1573,† and one of these Christopher Younge's took degrees at Oxford, in 1563-4 and 1566.‡

These appointments may have been obtained through the influence of Thomas Young, Archbishop of York, who, in the reign of Mary, fled to Germany, but returned when Elizabeth became Queen, and by her was made Bishop of St. David's, in 1559, and Archbishop of York, and President of the Queen's Council for the north part of England in 1560.§ He married Jane, daughter of Thomas Kenaston, of Shropshire, and died in 1568.‡

Christopher Yonges, Vicar of Southwold, 1611-1626 (our last English ancestor), could have been the son of Christopher Younge, Vicar of Ashburton and Ermington, and it is possible that he may have been the Chaplain at Windsor, or the Vicar of Brotherton, Yorks. Although we cannot identify his immediate ancestor, still the arms borne by his grandson, Col. John Youngs (see p. 50) is proof that his line of descent is through Tudor Trevor and the Yonges of Brynyorken.

In 1633, Henry Yonge, of the Brynyorken family (see p. 11) living at Poulton, near Liverpool, gave the name of his wife's father as Robert Gill (see p. 9). Strangely enough, we find the Rev. John Youngs, at Salem, Mass., in 1640, having an apprentice boy named Robert Gell (see p. 17). (Gill and Gell are the same family name, and have the same derivation and meaning.)

The inference is that this boy belonged to the Gill family of Poulton, and that when Capt. Joseph Youngs made a voyage to England, in 1638, he visited his relatives there, and, on his return, young Robert Gell came with him to America.

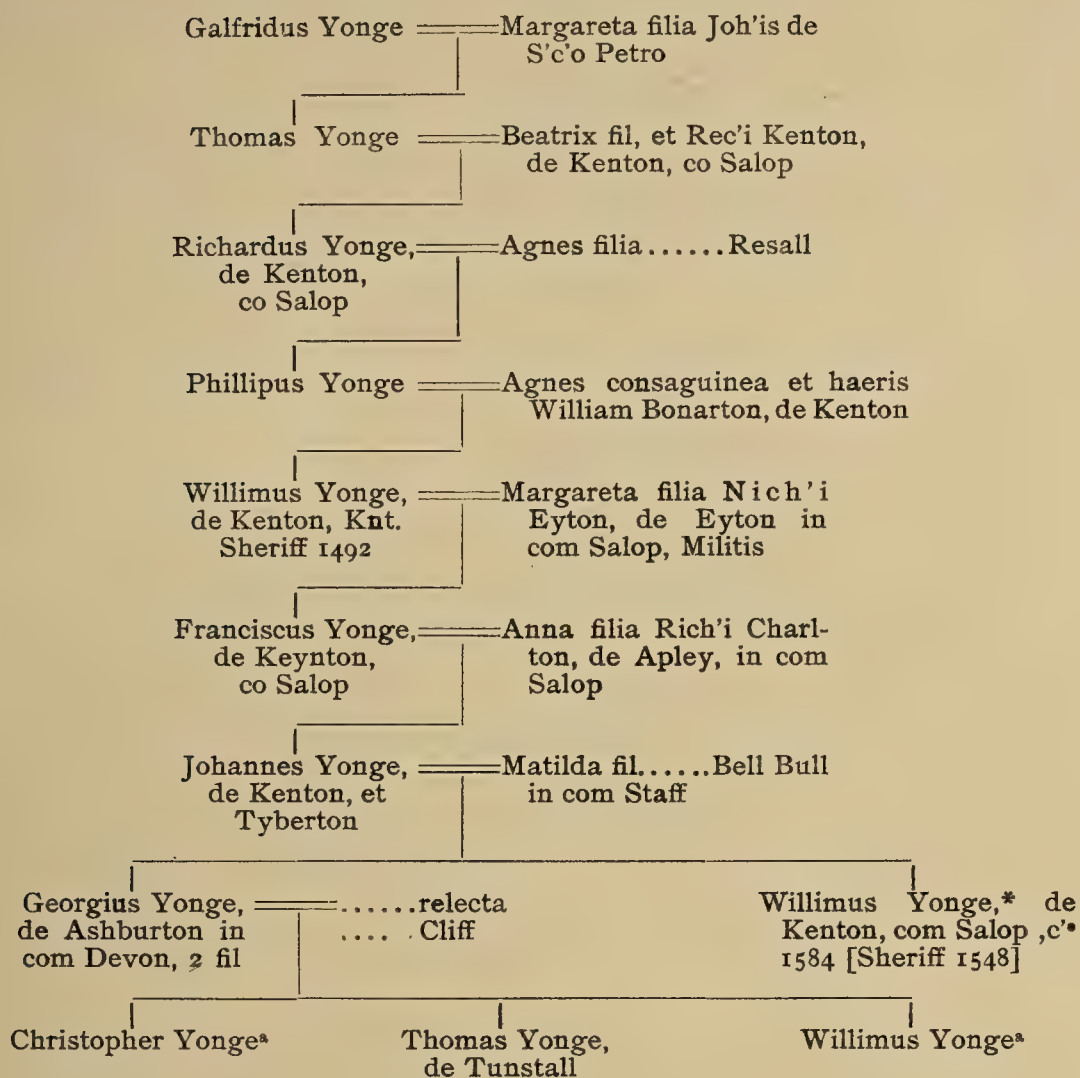

a The will of Christopher Horne of Aylesham, yeoman, 4 March, 1602; proved 21 April, 1603, names nephew Christopher Yonges of Colby the elder, Christopher, John and William Yonges sons of my nephew Christopher Yonges, wife of Emma Horne—sister Johan Yonges. (N. E. Gen., and Hist., Rec., Apl., 1898.) This Christopher Yonges the elder has been taken to be the father of Vicar Christopher Yonges of Southwold. As nephew of Christopher Horne it is quite improbable that he was old enough to have been the father of Vicar Youngs, and it is shown to have been impossible by the Lincolnshire Pedigrees, which gives that family as follows: "Christopher Young of Keadby in Isle of Axholme, living 9 Jany., 1597/8; called senior in 1610." his son, "Christopher Young of Kelby, called junior 17 June 1610; a disclaimer 1634"; and having a son "William Young of Kelby." Our Vicar Yonges had been dead six years before this latter date. ((Harlein Soc., LII, p. 1127.)

LEAVING ENGLAND.

The people of Suffolk County were strictly non-conformist; and under Charles I and Archbishop Laud, the Catholic forms and ceremonies had been restored in the churches, and pastimes and recreations after service revived, as had been the custom before the Reformation.*

On Puritanism war was made without mercy; ministers were deprived of their benefices, or were fleeing the country.

Laud was furious and undertook through the High Commission to prevent their escape and subdue them.*

The situation was intolerable. Capt. Joseph Yonges was master of the ship Love, and, in July, 1635, his sister Mary and her husband, William Brown, giving their ages as 26 years, took passage for New England.† With them probably went Christopher Yongs and his wife Priscilla.

Martha Youngs and her husband, Thomas Moore, also left England about this time.

Two years later, on the 11th or 12th of May, 1637, Rev. John Yonge made the following application for permission to take passage on the Mary Anne, of Yarmouth, William Goose (or Gooch), master.

“This man was forbyden pas- sage, by the Commission^{rs} and went not from Yarmouth.	{	The examination of John: Yonges of St. Margretts: Suff / Minister aged 35 years, and Joan: his wife / aged / 34 / years with / 6 / children / John: Tho Anne: Rachel: Marey: and / Josueph: as desirous, to passe fo^r Salem: in New England to inhabit / / / .”†
---	---	--

This order by the High Commissioners did not prevent, or even seem to delay his leaving. The passenger list of the Mary Anne included sixty-two persons for Salem, and eleven for Holland;† and, disregarding the order, he promptly left England, and doubtless crossed the Atlantic on this vessel, either from Yarmouth or Holland, and in less than three months was in Salem, Mass.§

The “St. Margretts: Suff”(olk), of which he was minister, was doubtless the church at Reydon, dedicated to St. Margaret.

AT SALEM, MASS.

All the children of Rev. Christopher Yonges, except Margaret (who is not accounted for), came to Salem.

Mary and her husband, William Brown, came in the "Love," and with them probably was her brother Christopher Young and his wife Priscilla, for both of these men were received as inhabitants, and granted land in Salem in February, 1636.* Mary Brown died the year after arrival.†

Christopher Yonge was granted other lands there in 1637, 1638, 1642, and 1644,* after which he removed to Wenham, Mass., where he died in 1647. His only son, Christopher, was taken to Southold, L. I., and remained there.

Martha and her husband, Thomas Moore, were there in July, 1636, at which time he was granted land.

Rev. John Youngs, who engaged passage on the Mary Anne, on May 11, or 12, 1637, in less than three months had arrived in Salem, and on August 14, 1637, he was received as an inhabitant and granted land there.^a On the same day, Samuel Greenfield, who was a passenger on the Mary Anne, was also granted land,‡ indicating that they came on the same vessel.

On Christmas day of that year (1637), the town made an allotment of meadow lots, and "Mr. Yong," described as having eight persons in his family (the same number as given in his application to emigrate), received one acre.‡

December 21, 1639, the town granted him fifty acres of land, on condition that he "continue in the Plantation to use the same."§

On May 31, 1640, Robert Gell, "an apprentiss boy unto Mr. John Yongs," was brought before the court, tried and sentenced to be whipped for house-breaking and stealing on the Lord's day.|| This is the last record of Rev. John Youngs in Salem, and soon afterward he appeared in Southold, L. I.

Capt. Joseph Young was received as an inhabitant in 1638 and granted lands,¶ but some years later, he, with Thomas Moore and their families, followed Rev. John Youngs to Southold.

The grants of land at Salem were for home lots, agriculture and half-acre lots at Winter Harbor for the curing of fish, which was a very important article of food at that time.

THE FOUNDING OF SOUTHDOLD, L. I.

The Rev. John Youngs in the inscription on his tomb is accredited with being the "First Settler Of The Church Of Christ In Southhold." There is no evidence that any one came with him, although it is thought that Matthias Corwin, who was from Ipswich, Mass., may have, but most of the early settlers are known to have been elsewhere for two or more years later.*

On his arrival, Lyon Gardner was on Gardner's Island, but the only white settlers on that fork of Long Island were Matthew Sinderland, at Hashamommock, and Richard Jackson adjoining him on the East, having a deed from James Farrett bearing date of August 15, 1640.†

At that time New England was over-supplied with ministers and teachers who had fled from religious persecution in England, and, as the Rev. John Youngs was without a charge, he left Salem and became the pioneer and founder of Southold.

He probably came via New Haven, Conn., with arrangements made for others to follow, but this is not a matter of record. The town was first known by the Indian name "Yennycok" (meaning extended country), and this it retained until about 1649, when it was re-named "Southhold."‡ The county was named "Suffolk," and the Long Island Sound was known as the "North Sea" until after the Revolution.

The first date in connection with the settlement is given by Trumbull, who states that Mr. Youngs organized a church there on Oct. 21, 1640; and that the planters united themselves with New Haven.§

It is claimed that this date is an error, and should be 1641, as the date of James Farrett's mortgage of Long Island to New Haven is July 29, 1641,|| and that, therefore, the settlement could not have been made prior to that date. Evidently we have not all the facts.

Farrett never took up the mortgage, and New Haven held the title until Southold bought it in 1649; and 1658.¶

Long Island east of Wading River, together with Shelter and Robins Islands, was in possession of four tribes of Indians, the Sachems of which were brothers; and some of the earliest Indian deeds are signed by all of them.

STEPHEN TANKHOUSE^a

The Shinnecock tribe was on the south side, extending east to Easthampton, and from thence to Montauk Point the Montauk tribe held sway. On Shelter Island was the Manhansett tribe, whose Sachem, Yengcoë, was recognized as the head chief. After his death, Wyandance, Sachem of the Montauks, was chief.

The country on the north side, or fork, from Wading River to Orient Point, was the territory of the Corchaug tribe, of which Mommowetah was the Sachem.

These Indians were friendly to the whites, but used tame wolves as dogs, which were troublesome to the settlers.

This part of the island abounded in shells and was the great manufactory for wampum, which was made from them. Prior to the Pequot War, in 1637, they paid tribute to that tribe, but they crossed the Sound and assisted the whites in exterminating the Pequots, and afterwards were taken under the protection of the United Colonies of New England, and paid them tribute in wampum, which was used as money.

The country was but sparsely wooded, owing to the Indians' custom of burning to increase the feed for deer.

The Corchaug tribe was not a large one, probably numbering three hundred in all, and their only village mentioned was "Five Wigwams," at Pipes Neck,* near modern Greenport. In after years many of them became servants or slaves to the whites, and they disappeared entirely years since.

The settlement was delightfully located at the head of a broad stream of water (Town Creek), putting in from Peconic Bay, a half mile to the south, and affording a fine harbor for their vessels. On its shore they had their ship yard and warehouse.

The location was attractive and quickly drew others from various parts of New England. The plan of the town was simply, Town street, running east and west, intersected by a road running north from Town Creek to the a Stephen Tankhouse, or Pharaoh, who died about 1875, was the last pure blood Sachem of the Montauk tribe. He was an ideal Indian, tall, lithe, quick and light of foot, with a low musical voice. He was descended from Wyandauch, through his daughter Askickotautup, the wife of Poniute. It was the boyhood delight of the author, more than fifty years ago, to see this tribe of Indians afoot and on horseback in procession annually come marching through Hampton Street into Sag Harbor.

*Southold Town Rec. i, p. 112.

Long Island Sound. Here they laid out their home lots of from four to seven acres each, and the outlying country was laid out, from time to time, in large tracts or "dividents," and granted to the settlers.

On these home lots their first homes were built of logs, with small windows covered with oiled paper and roofed with creek thatch. As a protection against fire each householder was required to have "a ladder sufficient to reach the topp" of his house "under penalty of 5s."*

Pastor Young's home lot was the largest, and was located on the southwest corner of the street and highway, and extended to the Creek, which it overlooked. It is the first entry in their book of records (which was not begun until some years after their arrival), as follows:

"Anno Domini 1651.

Impris—The Reverend Mr. John Youngs, Pastor of the Church of Christ in Southold aforesaid his home lot with the meadow thereunto adjoining Containing by estimation seven acres more or less, bounded on the East with the highway leading to the head of the Creek—On the West wth the whome lot of Robert Akerly."†

A meeting house was doubtless built in the early days of the settlement, and it must have looked more like a fortress than a church. It was also used for holding town meetings and as a court room, and was located within the bounds of the cemetery, where a monument now stands to mark the site. In 1684 it was appraised at £35, by Samuel Youngs and Thomas Clarke, carpenters, and turned into a county prison.‡

The first reference to Southold in the New Haven records is the following appointment made by the Court there, on April 6, 1642:

"John Touttle of Yennycok, deputed by the Court to be Constable to order the affayers of that plantation the time being till some further course be taken by this Court for the settling of a Magistrate accorging to God."§

The constable was the chief executive officer and, together with the overseers (who were elected by the town), conducted the town affairs.|| Magistrates were appointed later, and "fence viewers," and "tellers of cattle" were elected or appointed. Any person elected to office refusing to serve was subject to a fine of s. 40.

The General Court at New Haven, on Oct. 27, 1643, adopted a Constitution, the first article of which provided that in no one of the plantations under their jurisdiction should any but members of approved churches be free burgesses, or hold any power or trust in the ordering of civil affairs,¶ and this required even the drummer of the Militia Company to be a church member, although this was winked at in one instance in Southold.*

TOWN CREEK, SOUTHOLD, L. I.

TOWN STREET, SOUTHOLD, L. I.

This law was for self-preservation, and a necessity of the times, as the control of civil affairs by anti-puritans would have resulted in the loss of that religious liberty which they had left England to gain.

A militia company was soon formed, of which John Budd^a was lieutenant, and Barnabas Wines, corporal, and was composed of all the males from the age of sixteen to sixty years, as required by an article of the United Colonies, adopted May 19, 1643.†

Later eight pikes were added for Southold with "a partison for their Lieutenant, cullors for their Ensigns, halberts for their sergants and drumms fit for service."‡

The drum served another purpose; it called the people to church services, and one fourth of the men were required to bring their arms, loaded and ready for use, every Lord's Day; and such as could come, on Lecture Day. Their arms were placed in racks near the door, while a sentinel, with lighted match, kept guard outside during service.§

The body of men who gathered around Pastor Young's would have been a notable one anywhere, and while they mainly followed agriculture, several were vessel owners and mariners, most of the trades were represented, and some of the professions.

Among the first to arrive were Matthias Curwin (Corwin), John Tuthill, Thomas Stevenson, Robert Akerly, Barnabas Horton, John Budd,^a Abraham Whithear, Thomas and Richard Terry, and later came William Wells, James Haynes, William Salmon, Capt. John Underhill, Thomas Moore, Capt. Joseph Youngs, and many others.

The Secretary of the Dutch Governor of New York, in 1650, reported that "Southold contained about thirty houses," and this is the earliest picture we have of the town.||

With the family of Capt. Joseph Youngs, who came in 1649, was his nephew, the son of his brother Christopher Young, late of Wenham, Mass., deceased, who was thereafter known in Southold as Christopher Youngs, Jr., he being a year or two younger than the son of Rev. John Youngs of the same name.

All the descendants of Vicar Christopher Yonges were now in Southold, unless it was the daughters of Christopher Youngs, of Wenham, Mass.

^a In Oct., 1644, in the Southampton Records, he is called "John Budd of Yeanacock."

Capt. Joseph Youngs was then master of the "Mary and Margaret," and engaged in making trading voyages to the Barbadoes, and probably had the two oldest sons of his brother (Rev. John) on the vessel with him. He was a very able man, and when he died in 1657-8, he probably had the most valuable estate in Southold.

From 1653, times were strenuous in Southold. In that year Cromwell was at war with Holland, and desired the New England Colonies to attack and capture New York from the Dutch, but, by the time they were ready to move, peace was declared.*

In the meantime Capt. John Youngs (son of Rev. John), of his own volition, visited several towns in Connecticut, in his "barke," planning to raise volunteers to go against the Dutch, but without results.†

Returning to Southold he found the train band paralyzed because (Lieut. Budd having gone to England) there was no church member competent to command it.

Charles Glover, who was a member of the church at Salem, had exercised the company, but there seems to have been opposition to him because he was not a member of the church at Southold, so he declined to train it any longer.

Capt. Youngs was young and rash, and criticised matters in general, and New Haven in particular. Mr. William Wells, a lawyer and deputy from Southold, made complaint against Youngs to the court at New Haven, which was entertained, but, on inquiry, the court learned that he had gone to New York to trade, and that his vessel had been seized by the Dutch, who had imprisoned him on the ship King Solomon, and had taken his leathern bag, containing, by official inventory, "comb, towel, pins, flints, shoe strings, gloves, tobacco, paper (580) guilders, and wampum."‡

The court propounded that if a bond be given and a letter received from his father soliciting their aid, that they would write to the Dutch asking that he be sent to New Haven.

The bond was given, and later a letter was received from Pastor Youngs, stating that "himself and the town desire his son's release."§

In the meantime, Capt. Youngs escaped from the Dutch with his vessel, but his friends, Isaac Allerton and others, were willing to be his bail, so he returned, gave bail and was released. In May, 1654, he appeared before the Court at New Haven, acknowledged his foolish words and actions, was admonished, and released under bail of £100.

It was a beer-drinking age, and the Court at this time (1654) granted the following license:

"John Peakin hath lysence from this Court to sell strong water at Southold pvided that he attend the orders of the jurisdiction in that case, both to English and Indians."*

In 1654 Southold and New England were in constant fear of an attack by the Naragansetts and other Indians. Orders were issued that in each plantation horses should be kept ready for the quick dispatch of messengers, that the militia should train each week, and that watch and ward be set night and day. Messages were sent to Ninegret Sagamore of the Narragansetts, and Uncas, of the Pequot Indians, notifying them to desist from their "murderous intentions."

Capt. John Youngs, who was now in favor, was commissioned by the United Colonies, with his barke and men, and authorized to take on twelve other men, fully armed, to cruise in the Long Island Sound and prevent the landing of any Indians on Long Island, and this he did for two years.†

This constant vigilance did not cease until after King Philip's War, 1675-7, and was quite a strain on those in Southold who were growing old in years and service. In their town records we read that in 1674, "Deacon Barnabas Wines (corporal of the Militia Co. thirty years before) and Richard Benjamin, Sen., are freed from training whatching and warding."‡

They had another trouble, which was the Quakers (who were characterized by New Haven as "a cursed Sect of hereticks"). Several of the settlers at Southold joined them, and John Budd was fined for harboring them. It is true that a few were violent and abusive, and such an one doubtless was Humphry Norton, who, having been banished from Plymouth, went to Southold, from whence, in March, 1658, he was sent a prisoner to New Haven, charged, among other things, with having "greviously and in manifold wise traduced, slandered, and reproached Mr. Youngs, pastor of the church at Southold, in his good name and the honnour due him for his workes sake to gether with his ministrie and all our ministries and ordinances."§

In 1649 and 1658, either by agreement or purchase, Southold obtained from New Haven title (which it held both from Farrett and by Indian deeds) to all lands east of Wading River,|| except Hashamommock, which latter, in 1657, cast its lot in with Southold.¶

There is no record of the original Indian deed for Southold. William Salmon, who married Katherine, the widow of Matthew Sinderland, on February 24, 1645, obtained from the Corchang Sachem Paukhamp and his son Ambuscow, a deed for Hashamommock.¶ Salmon died, and the widow Katherine married John Concklyne (Conklin), who obtained a more comprehensive deed from the same Indians on Feb. 20, 1660.*

On May 16, 1648, New Haven obtained a deed from "Mammawetough, Sachem of Corchaug, of the land from Hashamommock to Plumb Gut,† and this included the original Jackson tract.

To the west of Southold lay Corchaug, Mattituck and Occabauk. There seems to have been two deeds covering this territory, one from the Corchaug family of Sachems, on March 14, 1648,‡ to New Haven, and another about the same time to Robert Woodhull and William Wells, from the four Sachems of Shelter Island, Meantalcut, Shinnecock and Corchaug.§ Southold reimbursed them and took the title.§

In 1660, Capt. John Youngs was a leading man at Southold, and was, with William Wells, a deputy to New Haven and a magistrate.||

In 1662, the Colony of Connecticut obtained a more liberal charter and a majority of the freemen of Southold (thirty-two in number, including Joseph Youngs, Gidion Youngs, and Joseph Youngs, Jun'r), signed an appointment of Capt. John Youngs as deputy, which he presented at Hartford, Oct. 9, 1662, and they were taken under its protection.¶

The Colony of Connecticut desired to obtain possession of all Long Island under its new patent, and, by its direction, Capt. John Youngs, in a letter dated Hempstead, October 27th, 1662, gave notice that all the towns on Long Island were under the jurisdiction of Connecticut.¶ The following year it appointed Capt. John Scott, together with Mr. Willys, Capt. Talcott, Mr. Richards, and Capt. John Youngs to dispossess the Dutch of the five towns at the westerly end of the island.

With a few men, furnished by Connecticut, Scott crossed to the east end of Long Island, and, with the Southold Militia and troop of horse under Capt. John Youngs, marched to the Dutch towns, and, in December and January, 1663-4, were at Flushing, Brooklyn Ferry, and other places, making proclamations, and sending letters to Gov. Stuyvesant.

The Dutch Records describe them as riding into the village of Widwout "with 60 or 70 horsemen, and as many foot, with colors flying, drums beating and trumpets sounding." Scott attempted to usurp the government of Long Island for himself, and was arrested and imprisoned.

Capt. Youngs' ability was recognized at Hartford, and on May 12, 1664, he was elected an assistant to Gov. John Winthrop (member of his council), and was afterward re-elected several times.††

Later in that year (1664) Capt. Youngs was again in the field with the Southold force to aid the English fleet in capturing New York; and on August 29th, 1664, two days after the surrender, Gov. Nichols wrote him as follows:

"You are by these presents required to take an exact list of ye Names of those of Long Island, who have taken upp Arms under your Command for their King and Country with ye places of their usual dwelling, and deliver them in a Roll to me. To this end and purpose, that I may hereafter upon all occasions, and in the first place be ready to gratifie those who have so eminently expressed their affections. 2dly. That those Arms may still remain in the same hands, for the service of the King and Country, And that ye officers upon any suddaine occasion may know whether to send to Assemble the same men againe, who are to repaire to their colors in such Cases unless the Deputies of the several Towns shall otherwise Agree upon the better ordering of the Militia of this Island for the future wch Deputies shall in Convenient time and place be summoned to propose and give advice in all matters tending to ye peace and benefit of Long Island. I shall desire you will impart this Letter to all your friends and Neighbors wch is all at prsent from

Your assured ffriend

Richd Nicolls.*

N Yorke Aug 29th
1664."

The calling for these names was a mark of signal honor and appreciation, and it is a matter of deep regret that this list has not been preserved. In it doubtless were the names of the sons of Rev. John and Capt. Joseph Youngs, viz:

Capt. John Youngs.	Joseph Youngs.
Thomas Youngs.	John Youngs.
Joseph Youngs.	David Youngs. Samuel
Benjamin Youngs.	Thomas Youngs.
Christopher Youngs.	Gidion Youngs.

The question then arose as to the boundaries between New York and Connecticut. Commissioners were appointed, of which Capt. Youngs was one; and on Nov. 30, 1664, they decided that the southern boundary of Connecticut was the Long Island Sound;† and this did not please Southold.

On March 1, 1665, Gov. Richard Nicolls convened a meeting at Hempstead, of two delegates from each town, to which Southold sent Mr. William Wells and Capt. John Youngs. Westchester, Staten Island, and Long Island were erected into a shire, named Yorkshire, and divided into three ridings, Suffolk County being the East riding; and William Wells, of Southold, was appointed "High Sheriff of Yorkshire." The Duke's laws were then promulgated by the Governor.‡

†Southold Town Rec. i, pp. 358, 374. Wood's Hist. L. I., p. 28.

These laws bore hard on the people, who protested; and Capt. Youngs seems to have represented the feeling at Southold, for Gov. Nicolls, in a letter to Mr. Tappen on May 7, 1666, wrote, "I believe Capt. Young is a bad instrument, but if I am not mistaken he hath not brains to carry on such a business."* We shall see later that the Governor was not only mistaken, but also misjudged Capt. Youngs' ability.

Having passed under the government of the Duke of York, it appears that Southold thought it best to fortify the title to their lands; and on Dec. 7, 1665, a confirmatory deed to Capt. John Yongs, Barnabas Horton, and Thomas Mapes, for and on behalf of the town (for all the lands as described therein) was obtained from and signed by forty-three Corchaug Indians. It was witnessed by Benjamin Youngs (son of Rev. John) and Benoni Flint. This deed covers all the land east of Wading River (including Southold proper, for which no original Indian deed has been found), and asserts that "all that tract of land" was "purchased procured and paid for of the Sachems and Indians our (their) ancestors."†

The year 1671, old style, brought sadness to Southold. The two men who had been their political and spiritual leaders for thirty years, passed away. William Wells, at the age of 63 years, died Nov. 13, 1671; and Pastor John Youngs, beloved of all, died on Feb. 24, 1671-2, aged 74. Barnabas Horton lived until 1680, and died at the age of 80. Matthias Corwin, who died in 1658, was probably born before Pastor Youngs, but the early settlers seem to have been younger than he.

On April 2d, 1672, a meeting was held, at which it was voted that Capt. John Youngs should go to the bay (Massachusetts) to procure a minister, at a salary of £60 sterling per year,‡ and Rev. Joshua Hobart was secured.

In 1683 a new meeting house, with cedar windows, was being built directly across the street from the old one, and the town honored its two leading citizens by voting, on Feb. 11, 1683/4, "that Capt. Youngs and Mr. Isaac Arnold should have liberty to set up a pue at the west end of the pulpit for themselves and families."§

On the 3d of April following, Thomas Mapes, Sen'r, Mr. Thomas Moore, Sen'r, John Tuthill and Caleb Horton were chosen "to seate ye Inhabitants of this Town in ye Meeting house."§ In December of the same year Samuell Youngs and Thomas Clarke, both carpenters, appraised the old meeting house at £35, to be made into a county prison, and sold "four Seder Windows left out of ye new meeting house" to Jonathan Horton for "£.3. in town payment."§

On July 30th, 1673, a fleet of Dutch war ships sailed up to New York, and the place surrendered without firing a gun. Capt. Anthony Clove was appointed governor; and on August 14, he notified the Long Island towns to send deputies to New York with power to make submission. The Suffolk County towns sent deputies, and submitted terms of submission, most of which were granted, and Isaac Arnold, one of the deputies from Southold, was appointed Sheriff.*

The Youngs had no love for the Dutch, and do not appear to have taken any part in these proceedings. The three towns at the east end having recovered from the shock, declined to submit, and sent delegates to Connecticut, asking to be taken under its jurisdiction and protection, which was granted, and a court organized, and Capt. John Youngs, John Howell, and Mr. John Mulford appointed judges.†

In the meantime, Gov. Clove sent his chief councilor, Corneelius Steenwyck, and two others, in the frigate Zee-hond (Seadog), with more liberal terms, and threats of ruin if they did not submit. From the journal kept on board the frigate, we learn the particulars of the mission. They sailed Oct. 31, 1673, about noon on Tuesday, and were thrown ashore by the current near "Corlear's hook"; but warped off and sailed to Hell-gate, where they met the flood, and had to return and anchor near Barnet's Island. Wednesday, the wind blew hard from the east, and they could not sail, so rowed to Barnet's Island; returning, touched a rock near the "Pot," and almost upset the boat. Thursday, they broke their rope and lost their anchor. Friday, they passed the "White Stone," and reached "Minnewit's Island." Saturday, they sailed near Falcon's Island and met a hurricane. Sunday, they reached the riff of the "Littlegatt," but lost their boat. Monday, they discovered a sail in "Pluymgat" and pursued to near Silvester's Island. The boat contained Capt. Winthrop and Mr. Willis, who went on board the Dutch ship, and both sides showed their commissions. Tuesday, Nov. 7, the Connecticut commissioners requested the Dutch to abandon their voyage, to which the Dutch replied that they were in duty bound to execute their commission.

On the 7th the Connecticut commissioners rowed up to Southold in a boat belonging to Silvester's ship, with the King's Jack in the stern. The Dutch followed in a boat borrowed from Capt. Silvester, with the Prince's flag in the stern. They arrived at Southold at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when they heard the drum beat and a trumpet sounded, and saw a salute with muskets whenever the Connecticut gentlemen passed by.

The Dutch commissioners landed and, approaching nearer, discovered a troop of cavalry riding backward and forward, four of whom advanced and offered their horses, on which the commissioners mounted. Ascending the heights, they met Capt. Winthrop and Mr. Wyllis, with a troop of horse of 26 or 28 men, and so they rode on together to the village, where they found a company of sixty footmen in arms. After tarrying a few moments, they marched into the village to the house of one Mr. Moore, which they were invited to enter. After being in the house a little while, Mr. Steenwyck requested that the inhabitants be convoked that he might communicate to them the commission of the Dutch governor. The Connecticut commissioners replied that the inhabitants of Southold, being subjects of His Majesty of England, had nothing to do with the Dutch, and then said, "Whosoever among you will not remain faithful to His Majesty of England, your lawful Lord and King, let him now speak," to which not one of the inhabitants made answer.

Mr. Steenwyck requested that the officers they had appointed be called. Thomas Hutchinson could not be found. Thomas Moore said he would not accept the office, saying that he "had nothing to do with it." Then Isaac Arnold, who had already been sworn as Sheriff, declared that he had already resigned his office as Sheriff, because it was not in his power to execute that office, having already been threatened by the inhabitants that they would plunder his house.

The Dutch commissioners were also warned by some Southampton men, who were there, not to go to that town, and they departed for New York.*

The Dutch sent a spirited protest to Connecticut, and sent ships and an armed force toward the east end of the Island, and made several descents; but, with the aid of troops sent by Connecticut, they were repulsed and driven off, but still continued aggressive, until, finally, on Nov. 26, 1673, Connecticut, in conjunction with the other New England Colonies, declared war against the Dutch, and made preparations to commence hostilities in the Spring. The Dutch, alarmed at this, on March 27, 1674, ordered their vessels assembled at a particular place, and prepared for defence; but peace was concluded in Europe on February 9, 1674, which put a stop to hostilities and restored all conquests to their former owners.

On June 29, 1674, the Duke of York obtained a new patent for the territories granted him, and appointed Major Edmund Andross governor. Gov. Andros arrived in New York, Oct. 31, 1674. The three towns at the east end of Long Island dreaded a return to the Duke's government, and sent a memorial to Gov. Andros stating "that, by the aid furnished them by the kindness of Connecticut, they had repelled the Dutch; that that government had appointed both their civil and military officers; that they had become bound by oath to that colony, and could not dissolve the connection without their approbation."

*Doc. Col. Hist. N. Y. ii, pp. 654, 657.

On Nov. 17, the people of Southold, by a vote of their town meeting, declared themselves "to be under the government of His Majesty's Colony of Connecticut, and that they would use all lawful means so to continue"; but all was without avail.*

On Nov. 18, 1674, the governor and council ordered a messenger sent to the three towns, requiring them to restore the former overseers and constables to their places "under penalty of being declared rebels"; and ordered the three deputies who signed the memorial on behalf of the respective towns, to wit, John Mulford, John Howell and John Youngs, to appear and answer before the council, or suffer a like penalty.

Reluctantly and finally, Southold and all Long Island submitted and became a part of the Colony of New York.

In 1674, Benjamin Youngs (son of Rev. John) was elected Recorder of Southold, the most responsible civil officer of the town, and was re-elected annually until his death in 1697.

On Oct. 31, 1676, Southold obtained a patent for their town from the Duke of York, signed by Gov. E. Andrus; and the six patentees named therein were "Isaac Arnold Justice of ye pace, Capt. John Yong, Joshua Horton Constable, Barnabas Horton, Benjamin Yongs, Samuel Glover and Jacob Corey Overseers.†

In 1681 Capt. John Youngs was appointed High Sheriff of Yorkshire, which office he held until it was abolished in 1683. On June 29th, 1681, he was appointed by the Court of Assize to draw up a petition to the Duke of York for an Assembly, which he did; and it was signed by John West, Clerk of Assize,‡ and presented to the Duke, and granted.

This first Assembly of the Colony of New York was convened at the City of New York, 17th Oct., 1683.§ In this same year (1683) Capt. Youngs was appointed one of the eight commissioners to settle the boundary between New York and Connecticut.¶

On May 30, 1686, the following were commissioned officers of the troop of horse. "John Youngs Lieut. Col., John Howell, Major, Isaac Arnold, Capt., John Budd, Lieut., and John Youngs Jr., Ensign."|| From 1689 to 1693 John Youngs was Colonel of the Suffolk County Militia, consisting of nine companies and 553 men.¶¶ He was succeeded by Isaac Arnold.

In 1686, by "Royal Instructions," he was appointed one of His Majesty's Council to Gov. Dongan, who, on Oct. 8, 1687, suspended him from office under the charge of "detailing many aged and sickly men unfit for service, and others without arms," to fill the Long Island town quota to protect the frontier. These charges evidently were untrue, for Gov. Dongan was superseded by Gov. Andros in 1688, who, in April of that year, appointed Youngs a member of his council, and reported to the home government that he was a man of proved loyalty and integrity.

When Jacob Leister, in 1690, usurped the government of the Colony of New York, Southold refused to support him, and, after his capture, Gov. Slaughter appointed Col. John Youngs and Isaac Arnold two of the judges who tried and convicted him of high treason.

On March 23, 1692, he was appointed a member of Gov. Slaughter's council; on April 20, 1693, of Gov. Fletcher's council, and when he died he was a member of His Majesty's Council to Gov. Belmont.* Thus was ended the career of the most notable man on Long Island during the entire colonial period.

Rev. Christopher Yonges, Vicar of Reydon and Southwold, England, was our last resident English ancestor, and the principal account of him will be found in the chapters on "By the Name of Yonge" and "Reydon and Southwold."

In his boyhood the Reformation swept over England, and Rogers, Latimer and Cranmer were burned at the stake.

He married late in life (Elizabeth did not favor the marriage of priests) and came to Southwold in the year in which the translation of the Bible into the King James version was completed. Shakespeare died in 1616, and Bacon in 1626, the same year as Vicar Yonges.

No higher tribute can be paid to one of his calling than is contained in his epitaph, and we can believe that he was like a "father in Israel," leading his people into ways of righteousness.

Abstract of his will:

"Christopher Yonges, clerk, minister of Southwold 21 November—proved July 5, 1626. To wife Margaret all lands, etc., for life, Then to my six children John, Joseph, Christopher, Mary, Margaret and Martha. To eldest son all my books except some English books such as my wife or my other children shall choose out for their use, one or two apiece. To John and Thomas Yonges my grand children, to each a silver spoon. Wife Margaret and John Smith and Thomas Elliot of Southwold to be executors." (Consistory Court Norwich 1626. No. 164).

Abstract of his widow's will:

"Margaret Youngs late wife of Christopher Youngs deceased of Southwold. 27 October 1630. proved 8 January 1630. For the outward goods that God hath given me I do dispose as followeth. For the house and land I dwell in I desire it may be divided amongst my children according to my husband's will. Next for all my household stuff &c. belonging to me, my will is, my debts and funeral charge being paid, the remainder to be equally divided betwixt my six children—John, Joseph, Christopher, Mary, Margaret and Martha, or so many as shall be alive at the time of my decease. My two sons John and Joseph Yonges to be Executors." (Arch Suff (Ipswich) B 59. 1629. 30. L 349.)

a In the Southwold Parish Register, the name Herrington and the word widow are difficult to read, but this is cleared up in the following recently discovered marriage license: "1622, 24 July, marriage lisence granted to John Yonges, bachelor, and Joan Herrington, of Southwolde, spinster. Bond in Mr. Christopher Yongs." (From W. Reynell-Upham, Exmouth, England.) She may have been the daughter of the Stephen Herrington mentioned in the will of Thomas Warren.

b She married at Great Yarmouth, Eng., 24 Jan., 1725, Richard Palgrave, who died 30 May, 1630. Their daughter, Anna Palgrave, bapt. Yarmouth, 24 Jan., 1725-6 (Palgrave Memorial); came to Salem, Mass., with the family of her step-father Rev. John Youngs, and married Nicholas Woodbury. This was testified to in 1710, by several elderly people who knew her. (New Eng., Hist., Reg., XXIX, p. 319.)

Rev. John Youngs was born in England about 1598, just as the long reign of Elizabeth was drawing to its close. It is believed that he was educated at Oxford, as its register states that "John Younge subscribed there 22 June, 1610."*

He was married in 1622, in the church at Southwold, Eng., of which his father was vicar, and his two eldest sons were baptized there.

He doubtless wore his hair long and flowing to the shoulder, which was the mark of a gentleman; and in the pulpit wore the Geneva gown. He owned the works of the Rev. William Perkins,† an able writer who taught the Calvinistic system, and that, no doubt, is the doctrine he expounded to his people.

It is not questioned that he was the first settler and founder of Southold, L. I., and next to him in point of time is believed to be Matthias Corwin.

There is every evidence that he was held in the greatest love and esteem. His home lot was the largest and best located, and he had a large share in the division of lands, most of which he gave to his sons some years before his death.‡ The remainder, together with his homestead, after his widow's death in 1678, was inherited by his son Benjamin, and from him the homestead, in 1697, probably passed to his eldest son, John. In 1783 it was in possession of Joseph Prince.§

He appears to have taken no active part in politics, and it is probably because of this that New Haven, on several occasions, desired to hear from c Edward Petty, m. Mary Youngs before 1658. She prob. died about 1671, for on May 15 of that year he gave his two youngest children, "James aged about nine years, to Thomas Moore * * * and said Thomas Moore's wife (sister of Rev. John Youngs) to be as their own child," and "his Sonn Joseph Petty aged about four years to Nathaniel Moore (son of Thomas Moore), he to bring him up as his own child." By the will of Mary, widow of Rev. John Youngs, he received one sheep as his full portion. After 1671 he married Mary—who was living in 1702. (Southold Town Rec., II, p. 19.) (See previous page.)

him before acting on complaints from Southold. It is attributed to his safe counsel and wise judgment that opposing factions were harmonized, that those in the town who were Quakers, or favored them, were not persecuted, and that there was no case of witchcraft in Southold.

Not a line of his handwriting has been preserved, but in the Town Records his name appears three times as a signature, and in each instance it is spelled "Youngs."*

He lived to see the town become prominent and prosperous, and two of his sons its leading citizens and officers.

The good Barnabas Horton and Deacon Barnabas Wines were with him and took his last words when the summons came and his work was ended.†

These two friends, in 1675, testified that "Mr. John Yongs at or nere his death left all his estate to the sole dispose of his wife Mrs. Mary Yongs," and she was appointed administratrix.*

For the principal events in his life, see the four chapters succeeding that on "By the Name of Yonge."

He brought with him his sister Mary, and her husband, William Brown, and doubtless his own family, and that of his brother Christopher, to Salem, Mass.

In 1638, he was master of the "Mary and Anne," (the vessel in which the Rev. John Youngs' family came over), and carried passengers and cargo from the Plymouth Plantation to England.*

In 1638 he was admitted an inhabitant of Salem, and together with his brother Christopher, were granted, each a half acre of land at Winter Harbor for their fishing affairs (to cure fish). He also was granted a ten-acre lot "neere Mr. Downings farme," and in 1639 he was granted thirty acres of land.†

In 1640-42 he obtained judgments against Richard Graves and Richard Hollingworth, the principal shipwrights of Salem.‡

He removed to Southold, L. I., about 1649, and, in Sept. of that year, he sold two houses in Salem to David Carwithy.§

At Southold he continued as master of a vessel, making trading voyages to Barbadoes and elsewhere, and in Nov., 1656, he was taking a cargo on the "Mary and Margaret," at Southold.||

He died intestate, and, on Jan. 7th, 1658, his widow had their property in Southold recorded, which showed that they had a "Whome" (home) lott, at the East end of the town on the north side of the highway between those of Arthur and Robert Smyth.*

An inventory of his estate, taken Sept. 15th, 1658, (after his share in his ship had been sold), amounted to £477. s. 09,¶ showing him to have been one of the wealthiest men in Southold.

In 1661, in an allotment of common lands, the widow received eight lots in Oyster Ponds, and this became the possession of her son Gideon, and was the celebrated 400-acre farm at Orent, L. I.

She appears to have settled her sons on different parts of the large estate in the town, but to have retained the management until her death about 1669, the last record being a release given by her to John Cory, May 9th, 1669.††

Four sons are mentioned in a record as follows: "All and every part of the lands that was in possession of Mrs. Margaret Youngs widdow. that is now in possession of her sons Joseph, John, Gideon or Samuel or any or all of them was recovered of her by lawe at a sesion held in Southold. John Youngs mariner being their attorney."‡‡

Christopher Yongs and his wife, Priscilla, probably came from England in 1635, in the ship "Love," of which his brother Joseph was master. He was a weaver, and brought looms, gearing, and cloth to this country; but had to supplement the product of his looms by fishing during its season.

On the 17th, 12th mo., 1636, he received a grant of land for a home lot at Salem, Mass., and was received as an inhabitant.||

He was granted half an acre at Winter Harbor for his "fishing affairs,"† and several large grants later.¶ About 1644 he removed to Wenham, Mass., where he died three years later.¶

His will, dated 19th, 4th mo., 1647; proved 8th, 5th mo., 1647, bears evidence that it was written by himself, and shows that he was a man of fine Christian character and loving disposition.

In it he bequeathes to his daughter Sarah his "great Bible," to his daughter Mary his lesser Bible, and to his son Christopher a book entitled "God's All Sufficiency," and directs that they be sent "over sea into our native County unto Great Yarmouth in Norfolk in Old England." Col. John Youngs came to America with his father's family, in 1637, and in early life was master of a bark, engaged in the coasting trade and carrying passengers between the colonies and plantations. His long and brilliant career is set forth in the chapter on "The Founding of Southold, L. I."

His home lot of four acres, and dwelling, which he recorded in 1656, was opposite that of his father's on the road to Town Creek, and it is now (1906) occupied by Mrs. Rebecca Downs.*

He was a large owner of land, which he obtained both by purchase and grants. In May, 1649, the General Court at New Haven granted him some forty acres on the west side of Sterling Harbor,† and on Nov. 20, 1659, Southold Town granted him a strip of land between that and the original Jackson tract, then the Moore farm.‡ All of this came to be known as West Neck. In 1674 he gave it to his eldest son, John,§ and three generations of his descendants lived upon it. It is now entirely covered by the town of Greenport.

Another important tract was the 500-acre farm at Oyster Ponds, Upper Neck, which remained unbroken in the family until 1816, when Justice Thomas Youngs bequeathed it to his four sons.|| This tract Col. Youngs gave to his son Thomas in 1686.¶ To his sons-in-law Thomas Gilbert and Thomas Longworth he gave lands in 1684/5.

"In the second generation of this place he was the foremost man in Southold, and no other man on Long Island was so prominent."††

11 THOMAS,³ Capt. (*Rev. John,*² *Rev. Christopher*¹), B. Southwold, Eng., 1 May, 1625;* d. Elizabeth Town, N. J., bet. April and Sept., 1686.

He prob. married, but doubtless left no widow or children.

He wrote his name both "Young" and "Yongs," and has been confounded with "Thomas Younges" of Oyster Bay, L. I., who was his cousin.

He doubtless was in Southold, L. I., with his father's family, and on Oct. 28th, 1671, he received a deed of gift from his father of a tract of land in "Oysterpond Upper Neck," with the proviso that he was not to sell it, but to leave it to his heirs.† But he sold it to his half brother, Christopher Youngs, Oct. 2nd, 1679.‡

These are the only records of him in Southold, L. I., and he seems not to have had any house or home lot there.

The first mention of him in America is on Nov. 30th, 1654, when, his "Ketch" (schooner) having been stranded at Hell Gate, he was sued in the Court at New Amsterdam (New York) by Cornelius Van Dort, for "100 guilders as promised for assisting in getting the Ketch off the rocks and bringing her to Manhattan,"‡ and he was before the same court several times in 1658.§

On Feb. 9, 1665, he, with his brother Christopher and eleven others from Southold, together with others, took the oath of allegiance at Elizabeth Town, N. J. (his name heading the list), and founded that town under grants from Gov. Richard Nichols, he receiving a "Third Lot Right."|| a The seal on his original will was discovered by Miss Lucy D. Akerly. An impression was taken from it by the author, which was submitted by Mrs. George Wilson Smith to Mr. Thomas Moring of London, genealogist, and pronounced by him to be the Tudor Trevor coat of arms.

Three days later, Gov. Carteret appointed him one of his council.||

He proceeded at once to have a house built, and was sued for payment of same.*

Several other records seem to show that he had a wife, and perhaps children, although none survived him.^a

During the following twenty years he received several large grants of land,† the last of which was on Feb. 27, 1684.‡

On Aug. 31, 1683, he was appointed by Gov. Dongan the first pilot of New York,§ and on Oct. 2, 1685, he and Robert Barlow gave a receipt to Miles Foster, of Amboy, merchant, for goods, to be sold or traded in New England.||

By will, dated April 29th, 1686, he bequeathed all his estate to Christopher Youngs (probably son of his brother Christopher) and Thomas Longworth^b (who married Deborah, daughter of Col. John Youngs).

a In 1672, Seawanam, a Long Island Indian, binds himself to Thomas Young of Elizabeth Towne, Marriner, as his servant, for four years, about the house or family, or abroad, whether by land or water, on condition of being supplied with sufficient meat, drink and clothes, washing and lodging, according to his rank and qualities, to receive for his services a mare, and after the first voyage to Europe or Barbadoes, one suit of apparel. Benjamin Yongs was probably born in Southold, N. Y., and is first mentioned in the will of his grandfather, Thomas Warren, of Southwold, England, dated 4 March, 1641, bequeathing him £10.

He seems to have lived in the old homestead with his father and mother, and to have inherited it by will from his mother in 1678, together with all the household and farming effects, and other lands.¶

In 1665 he was a witness to the Indian deed for that part of the Island, and one of the patentees of the town in 1676.

From 1674 to 1683, he was Town Clerk, and Recorder from 1674 to the time of his death, in 1697.††

In 1675 he was on the tax list as Beniam Yongs: 2 heads (able-bodied men) £36; 18 acres (land fenced in) £18; 6 oxen, 3 cows £51; 2, 3 yr. olds, 2, 2 yr old, £13; 1 horse, 1 yerling hors £15; 21 sheep, 8 swine £09. Total £142.‡‡

In the census of 1686, he had 4 males and 3 females in his family,‡‡ and in the census of 1698 (after his death), his family is given as "Elizabeth

His two sons are identified by several deeds executed before and after his death.‡

The last record of him is in 1697, when he gave a quit claim to Jonathan Horton for land which he had sold to his father in 1675.§

He evidently died intestate, and the "Youngs Homestead" probably passed to his son John. In 1783 it was owned by Joseph Prince.

Christopher Youngs was known in Southold as "Senior" to distinguish him from his cousin, Christopher Youngs, Jun., No. 26, who was born in 1643. He signed his name both Youngs and Yongs,* but his cousin made his mark.†

He was a mariner and had a half interest in the sloop "Speedwell."‡

In 1665, he went to Elizabethtown, N. J., with his brother Thomas and others, but, in Nov., 1667, he sold his house and lands there and returned to Southold.§

In Southold he first owned a house and home lot on the north side of Town Street, which he bought of Elnathan Topping, and this he sold Oct. 20, 1670, his first wife, Mary, signing with him.||

On Aug. 1, 1670, he bought the house and home lot of Benjamin Horton,¶ on the south side of Town Street and adjoining that of his brother, Col. John Youngs.

In order that he might have a full frontage on the street, his mother, in 1675, bought of John Core a piece "two pole square" and gave to him,¶ and by will bequeathed him other lands.¶¶

He also received a gift of land from his father, bought land of his brother Thomas, and made numerous purchases and sales.

By the will of his father-in-law, John Budd, dated 27 Oct., 1684,†† his wife inherited various parcels of land, &c.,†† and on the 2nd Feb'y, 1685/6, he gave a receipt to the executors for the same.‡‡

After his death, John Budd, the eldest brother of Mary, the widow of Christopher Youngs, deceased, gave to her and her two sons, Christopher and John, a deed confirming to them the "Ockebock" lands,§§ which she inherited by will of her father.

The intent of this was to secure this land to her sons, independent of his son Benjamin, by his first wife.

The sons, Christopher and John, went to live on this land at Acquebawk, and, on May 12, 1712, entered into an agreement to divide it after the death of their mother;||| but it was divided before her death, for in 1723/4, she, in consideration of a sum of money, gave a quit claim to her son John for his part of the land "as divided."¶¶¶

In 1675, he was rated for £120. s. 10. In 1686, he had 4 males and 2 females in his family.

Joseph Youngs resided in the village of Southold, L. I., and in the town records is designated as "yeoman." He had considerable landed estate and a home lot and dwelling on the north side of Town Street, which later was owned by his son Josiah, and, as eldest son, he gave quit claims to his brothers or their children for their shares in his father's estate.* His name is in the census of 1698, together with his wife's and two of his children's, Thomas and Mary.† In 1706/7 he sold land to his son Thomas.‡

John Youngs is designated in the Southold Town Records as "marriner." He had a house and home lot on Town Creek at the rear of the home lots of Christopher Youngs, Col. John Youngs, and Peter Payne, which he bought of Charles Glover.||

In 1667 he received permission from the town to "build a wharf on the creek side in front of his dwelling," and, in 1669, to build a warehouse on the common at the rear of his lot.||

He made a number of transactions in land between that time and 1689, and in 1703 (after his death) his eldest brother, Joseph Youngs, gave a quit claim to his eldest son, Abraham Youngs, for his share in the estate of his grandfather, Capt. Joseph Youngs.||

His wife is mentioned in the will of Barnabas¹ Horton, May 10, 1680, as his "youngest daughter Mercy Youngs," and, in 1689, Joshua Horton recorded meadow lands which he had "purchased of his brother-in-law, John Yongs marriner."*

In 1698 his home lot is described as belonging to Mercy Youngs.† It passed into the possession of his eldest son, Abraham, and he sold it in 1707/8 to his brother John.‡ In 1784 it was owned by his brother John's son, Nathaniel.‡

He is in the census list of 1686 with 3 males, 2 females, and 1 male slave in his family, which indicates that his son John was not born at that time.

In the census of 1698 (after his death), we have the family group, "Christopher Youngs, Mercy Youngs, Abraham Youngs, Nathaniel Youngs, John Youngs,§ but his wife is not designated as "widow," and had probably married Christopher Youngs, No. 26, who was no longer "junior," as C. Y. Senior, No. 16, had died in 1695.

Thomas Younges: The tradition in this family is that they are descended from the Youngs who settled Southold, L. I., and he doubtless was the son of Capt. Joseph and Margaret (Warren) Youngs, and probably was named after her father, Thomas Warren, of Southwold, England.

The first mention of him is on Oct. 4th, 1673, when he received a grant of land at Greenwich, Conn.|| He did not remain there long, and three years later he was at Oyster Bay, L. I., where he became the progenitor of the Oyster Bay branch of Youngs.

His removal is set forth in a conveyance to his son John, on Dec. 2nd, 1689, of all his property in Greenwich, in which he is described as "Thomas Youngs, once an inhabitant of Greenwich, Conn., now a resident at Oishter Bay, L. I."*

The time of his locating there is established by a grant to him by the Town of Oyster Bay on June 20th, 1676, as follows, "unto Thomas Youngs, three acres of land for a home lot, lying on ye South West side of ye Cove Neck Swamp, . . . with free commonage of grasing and timber, provided that ye said Thomas Youngs doth build upon ye said lot, or fence it within a twelve month and a day, if not to return to the Town again without exception."† This is the site of the original Youngs homestead, and the estate was built up by subsequent grants and purchases.

In 1687 he was made an "equal townsman,"‡ and in 1694 he was granted the liberty to spin rope yarn and make rope "up the Hollow by his shop on ye Commons."§

His second wife and children are identified by various conveyances of land.

On Feb. 2nd, 1679, he sells to "my (his) father-in-law Richard Harcourt," all his right in Unqua Neck,|| and, in 1697/8, "Thomas Youngs and Elizabeth his now wife" convey to Thomas Wood "the house and land where the said Tho Wood now liveth, which was given us by our father Richard Harcott decd."¶

On May 10th, 1699, he executed a deed of gift to his "eldest son, John Youngs of Stamford," and on the same date to his son Thomas Youngs thirty acres of land nigh to Cold Spring.††

In 1703 he conveyed lands to his sons Richard||| and Samuel,‡‡ and to Benjamin and Jonas, naming them as his two youngest sons.§§

In the deed to his son Samuel he reserved to himself a strip of land "for a Rope Yard forever,"§§ which indicates that he continued the business of rope-making.

In 1720 he sold to his son, Samuel, land which he bought of Richard Butler in 1715.¶¶

The original deeds to his sons, Richard and Samuel, in 1703, and Samuel in 1720, with his signature affixed to each, are in the possession of William J. Youngs, and in each signature his name is written Younges.

Prior to the earliest date of these deeds, he had leased his homestead and farm to his sons Thomas and Richard for three and one-half years.

The body of the lease and the signatures are in the beautiful handwriting of Thomas Younges, Sen'r, and wherever the family name appears in it, it is written Younges. Evidently it is a duplicate of the lease given to his sons, and the date, which, strange to say, is 1670, cannot be reconciled with the ages of his sons, as the son Richard was probably born about 1674. Hereafter something may be discovered to elucidate this apparent mystery.

OYSTER BAY, the first month, 20th day, 1670.

This is an agreement made between Thomas Youngs, senior, and Thomas Youngs and Richard Youngs his brother. First they are to have the free use of my team cart and plow, with the iron chains and all things thereto belonging, and they are to stub and break up and manure all the said land, now within fence, that is fit for it, and they are to look well and carefully after all my creatures, and they are to have for their team and plow two-thirds of all the increase, of all the land manured, that I own there, and they are to have two-thirds of the fruit, and I reserve one or two barrels for John Youngs, and so every year following as they enjoy it. Then for the sheep, there are thirty, and they are to deliver me thirty pounds of wool each year. That is one pound for one sheep, and there are nine lambs, and at the end of three years and a half they are to deliver me thirty sheep and nine lambs. Now for the cattle, we are to have half of the milk and one-third of the increase, and they two-thirds; and they are to find and provide me a beast to ride, on when I please, and they are to provide me wood to burn, what is needful.

Four cows, one two-year old heifer, one two-year old bull, four yearlings, and the principals engage to me to make good, at the term and time of three years and a half, of all these creatures. We do also engage to sow so many acres of wheat and rye on the ground as there is now, at the end of three years and a half; and to leave all my goods and carts and plows, and them, with all things else, that they receive of me as good, as they are now; two broad chisels, two narrow chisels, one saw, two adze, compasses, one inch and a half auger, three lesser augers, one bung borer, one presser bit, one mattock, two forks, three pair of new traces and one old pair, two new collars and two old collars, one pair of cart traces with iron hook, with a new collar. One crosscut saw, one new file, a beetle, three wedges, one saw set, two great cleavices with the bolts, two lesser cleavices with the bolts. And they are to tan my hides for one third, and they are to leave all my farm in as good order and repair as they are now with all things else, with six bushels of oats, two bushels and a half of peas, two bushels of barley, one bushel and a half of flax-seed.

As our hand and seal the manner as within,

THOMAS YOUNGS, Sen.,
THOMAS YOUNGS, Jun.,
RICHARD YOUNGS.

Thomas Younges wrote his name Younges, and his sons did likewise. Later generations of this branch have written it Youngs.

Thomas Youngs

Our English ancestor wrote it both Yonges and Younges. In recording the death of his daughter he wrote, "Elizabeth Yonges daughter to Mr. Younges, vicar and minister."*

In Southold, L. I., the name was usually written "Youngs," but in a quit claim given by the widow of Capt. Joseph Youngs in 1669, her name is written Margret Younges, and in 1698 her son Samuel (brother of Thomas, of Oyster Bay), in giving a receipt, signed his name Samuell Younges.†

Col. John Youngs in his account as High Sheriff, in 1680, spells his surname "Younges."

None other than the descendants of Vicar Christopher Younges of England are known to have spelled their surname Younges in America, and it seems clear that this Thomas Younges is rightly placed in this family.

The will of Elizabeth Youngs, widow, relict of Thomas Youngs, of Oyster Bay, deceased, dated August 4th, 1726, mentions her sons, Richard, Samuel and Jonas Youngs, and daughter-in-law, Abigail Youngs, widow of Joseph Youngs, deceased, also "Neppe," the wife of her son Samuel, and grand-daughters, Elizabeth and Mary Youngs. A codicil mentions her granddaughters, Mary and Elizabeth Ireland, and cousin George Townsend.‡

In the census of 1686 his family is reported as consisting of four males and three females. The males doubtless being himself and his sons Ephraim, David, and Samuel. Nathan and Zerubable probably were sons of his second wife and born after 1690.

His first wife probably died about 1690, for we find that on Nov. 10, 1691, he bound out his son David, then eight years of age, to Joseph and Ruth Mapes to learn the cooper's trade,†† and in the census of 1698 his name, together with that of Mary Youngs (probably his sister), is in the family group of Joseph and Ruth Mapes. His son Samuel was also probably bound out to Nathan Langdon or Joseph Swezey, his name being between

In 1675 he was rated as Christopher Yongs, Jun'r, (on cattle) for £56.†

He married Hannah (or Anna) Nichols (granddaughter of Barnabas Winès, Sen'r), whose mother Hannah (or Anna) for her fourth husband married Col. John Youngs.‡ She brought with her considerable estate,§ and on Feb. 4, 1677, after his marriage, he executed an agreement with her regarding the same.§ After this he had several large transactions in land.||

The only house and home lot which there is a record of his owning is the one he bought of Josiah Youngs, in 1692,§ on the north side of Town Street, Southold, L. I.

After his wife's death and his children had grown up, he seems to have been living with the family of his cousin, John Youngs, mariner, deceased (No. 18), and had probably married the widow, Mercy Horton Youngs, as he appears at the head of her family group in the census of 1698, and she is not designated as "widow."¶

John Youngs is designated in the Southold Town Records as "farmer" and "Jun'r."

In 1683 he was Ensign of the troop of horse, and just before his death, in 1685, he was commissioned Lieut.

In 1674 he received a deed of gift from his father of land called "West Neck," and adjoining the "Moore farm" on the west. It is now covered by the village of Greenport. John and his descendants occupied it for four generations.

His wife brought him considerable property,‡ and he made several purchases and sales of land.§

On Jan. 27, 1685, his widow was appointed administrator of his estate,|| and an inventory taken Oct. 16th gave a valuation of £185. s. 18.¶

In the census of 1686, the family of "Mary Youngs widow" consists of three males and two females. The males evidently were his sons Daniel, William and Joshua, the latter then two years of age.

The census of 1698 gives the names of this family in a group as follows: "Mary Youngs, widow, Daniel Youngs, William Youngs, Joshua Youngs."

In a later generation the name of this Joshua's father was supposed to have been Zerubable, but Joshua was in this family from infancy, and it appears to have been an error. (See Joshua No. 76 and Thomas No. 173.)

the death of his uncle, Col. John Youngs, in 1697. "John Youngs, cord-winder," No. 39, and "John Youngs, taylor," No. 49, were of the same generation.

In 1697 he doubtless inherited the Rev. John Youngs' homestead from his father, and in the census of 1698 his name is in the family group next after the name of his mother, Elizabeth Youngs, widow. In a deed dated 30 Sept., 1702, he is mentioned as John Youngs, Sen'r, owning land "late in possession of his father, Benjamin Youngs, deceased."*

April 3, 1705, he, "John Youngs of Southold, yeoman," sold to John Goldsmith 14 acres of land in Hog Neck, a half lot of 14 acres, and a half lot of commonage, undivided.†

On May 12, 1712, he, "John Youngs of Southold, yeoman," sold to John Corwin two first allotments of land, in consideration of said Corwin selling two first allotments of land to his brother Benjamin Youngs, of Southold, weaver.‡

In 1715 he was a private in the Southold Militia Co. No. 1, Benjamin Youngs, Captain.

After this time there is no record of him in Southold, nor is it known when or to whom the Rev. John Youngs' homestead and home lot passed from his possession; neither do the "Salmon Records" give his death. He probably removed to New Jersey or Connecticut or some other county of New York.

Benjamin Youngs, in 1694, when sixteen years of age, began learning the trade of weaver, of John Alaban, who engaged to teach him as far as he could, "excepting bed ticking."*

In May, 1712, John Corwin sold him 50 acres of land, in consideration of which his brother, John Youngs, sold 50 acres of land to said Corwin.†

This land he, "Benjamin Youngs, Jun., of Southold, weaver," exchanged, Sept. 16, 1713, with Joseph Hull, for a house and home lot, his wife, Mercy Youngs, signing the deed with him.‡

In 1715 he was in Militia Co. No. 3, of which his cousin, Benjamin Youngs, was Captain.

Of his sons, Isaac settled in Southold, Joseph located near Mattituck, Seth removed to Connecticut, and Israel in 1761 bought a farm in Franklinville, L. I. (now Laurel), and he probably went to live with the latter and died there.

a Robert Hempstead was a native of New London, Conn., and came to Southold for his education. He studied law with Judge Benjamin Youngs, and afterwards married his daughter. He was a Justice of the Peace and, in 1776, chairman to the Southold Committee of Safety and a delegate to the New York Provisional Convention. In 1775 he engaged to support Congress; and on Aug. 27 and 31, 1776, after the Battle of Long Island, as chairman of the Town Committee, he wrote to Congress describing their exposed and helpless condition and soliciting aid. Gen'l Wooster was sent to the east end of Long Island with troops, but was soon ordered to join the main army. General Washington in a letter explained that the army must be used in the most effective manner for the good of the cause, rather than in attempting to protect localities. (Force Archives.)

The week after the massacre at Fort Griswold, Conn., the British fleet lay in Gardner's Bay, and Elnathan Burts, a tory, of Southold, visited it and gave information of the conduct of his neighbors; and on the 6th Sept., 1781, twenty armed men in two whale boats landed early in the morning at the east end of Southold and disarmed a number of people, fired on sundry of them, and coming to David Gardner's, they forced open the doors and entered with fixed bayonets and took many goods, after which they knocked down Joseph Peck, and on their way to the shore they beat with their guns Mr. L'Hommedieu and his wife, aged people, and threatened to fire the house of Widow Moore.

Capt. Benjamin Youngs was the second of his name in Southold, his cousin Benjamin Youngs (son of Benjamin Youngs, No. 15) being ten years younger.

In several deeds prior to 1700 he is designated as carpenter, or husband-man.§ One of these was a deed to him in 1696/7 from Theophilus Case, for a first lot of land at Aquebogue, extending from the Sound to the Bay, lying west of the land John Budd gave to his dau. Mary, the wife of Christopher Youngs (his father).

Fanny Ledyard became the second wife of Richard Peters, who owned the Col. John Youngs homestead.

(Ondirdonk's Scrap Book, Astor Library, Griffin's Journal, p. 138.)

Her eldest son was John Ledyard, the traveler, who after his voyage around the world with Capt. Cook, visited her in Southold.† She was the leading spirit among the Methodists at the formation of the earliest class in Southold in 1795 (Griffin's Journal, p. 259, Life of John Ledyard Sparks).

In 1697 his uncle Benjamin Youngs died and he was elected to fill his place as Town Clerk and Recorder, and for forty-four consecutive years was annually re-elected.* He was a Justice of the Peace for many years, and from 1723 to 1738 Judge of the Court of Common Pleas.† In 1726 he was Treasurer of Suffolk County, and in 1715 Captain of the Southold Militia Co. No. 1.

Early in life he is said to have been the academic teacher, and later to have taken up the profession of law.

After the death of Col. Isaac Arnold, in 1706, he was the leading man in the town until his death in 1742. He lived in the old homestead, which he inherited from his father, on the south side of Main street, and next west of the residence of his uncle, Col. John Youngs, and from him it passed to his son-in-law Robert Hempstead. He died intestate and his three sons-in-law were appointed administrators on his estate. He left no male descendants, but his daughters married three notable men. One of his great grandsons, Col. William Ledyard, was in command of Fort Griswold on Groton Heights when, on Sept. 6th, 1781, two regiments of the British troops under the traitor Benedict Arnold assailed the fort, and after suffering heavy loss overpowered the heroic defenders. Col. Ledyard surrendered his sword to the British officer, who, exasperated by such a dearly bought victory, ran him through the body with it and he fell mortally wounded. A general massacre took place and some of the brave defenders were put in barrels and rolled down the steep hill. More than twenty of the name and connections of Ledyard were engaged in this action.‡

In 1712 he and his brother John were living on the farm at Aquebogue (which their mother-in-law inherited from her father Lieut. John Budd), and in that year entered into an agreement that after the death of their mother, John should have the land north of the Queens Road to the Sound, except a strip two rods wide on the east side of it, which should belong to Christopher, together with the land on the south side of the Queens Road extending to the Bay.* Christopher is said to have built on the site of the house (built in 1800), owned in 1900 by George F. Wells, who married Mary Jane Youngs. In 1715 he was in the Southold Troop of Horse.

He died intestate, and on Sept. 1, 1727, an inventory of his estate was taken, which included 30 head of neat cattle, 45 sheep, 4 horses, and Dec. 20, 1728, his son Christopher was appointed administrator.†

On the death of his widow in 1747/8 their son Christopher was appointed to administer on her estate.

Their son Daniel is identified by his will proved in 1755. We find no record of they having other than these two children, although it is probable that they had.

The division was consummated sooner than provided, and in Mch., 1723/4, John received a quit claim from his mother for his part,† and the same month sold 88 acres on the north part, and extending to the Sound, to Israel Parshall.‡ This left him the part bounded on the south by the Queens or South Road.

In 1715 he was in Company No. 3 of the Southold Militia, James Reeve Captain.

In 1731 he contributed to build a church at Aquebogue.§ His son David was probably named after his neighbor David Parshall.

This John Youngs' name appears in the MSS. index of the Southold Town Records as "John Youngs Jr.,"‡ but in the deed then recorded he is designated as "John Youngs of Southold taylor." The deed was dated Jan. 15, 1707/8, and was from his brother Abraham, for the home lot of 3 acres on Town Creek, south of the home lots of Benjamin Youngs and Peter Payne, and fourteen acres in Calves Neck.§

Mch. 4, 1714/15, he bought 10 acres of land in Calves Neck of Samuel Glover.||

In 1715 he was in the Southold Militia Co. No. 1, Benjamin Youngs Captain.

In 1737 he was on the list of freeholders in Suffolk County. On Oct. 29, 1746, he signed a marriage agreement with Mary Reeve, witnessed by Nathaniel Youngs and John Budd.§

The will of his widow, dated 25 Oct., 1763, bequeaths her third to her husband's daughter Patience Terry, and that the other two thirds be paid to the children as the law directs.

I., in which he called them his youngest sons, for his home lot and building and other lands, to be equally divided, reserving for himself and wife for their natural life whatever part of said house and premises they may need.†

On 13 Jan., 1709/10, he seems to have released the homestead to his father.‡

Aug. 10, 1716, he, Benjamin Younges of Oyster Bay, yeoman, sold to his brother Samuel the homestead and home lot in Oyster Bay,§ and removed to Greenwich, Conn.

On Oct. 24, 1724, he conveyed land in Oyster Bay to Richard Youngs, naming himself as Benjamin Youngs of Greenwich, Conn., formerly a resident of Oyster Bay.§

In 1738 he was one of the signers of a petition, to be excused from paying for the support of the Congregational Church, by members of the Church of England, citizens of Stamford and Greenwich.||

An inventory of his estates was taken 6 Mch., 1759, and Youngs Weed and Thomas Youngs, Junr., administrators, gave a bond for £600.¶

Daniel Youngs in 1715 was ensign of Militia Co. No. 3,‡ and he was also captain of a vessel. His grandfather, Col. John Youngs, in his will bequeathed him six shillings.

From his father he inherited the farm at West Neck (east of the "Moore" farm) where he lived.

On May 5, 1719, he sold to his aunt Mary Lynds, late wife of his uncle Thomas Youngs, deceased, the Col. John Youngs homestead.¶ From 1718 to 1723 he was sheriff of Suffolk County,¶ and in 1737 he was on the list of Freeholders.

After the death of his aunt Deborah and her husband Thomas Longworth, he came into possession of their home lot.

He died intestate and on Sept. 17, 1744, letters of administration were granted to his son Fitz John Youngs.

Judge Joshua Youngs' name appears on a stone in the Sterling Cemetery (erected to the memory of his son Thomas Youngs, who died in 1793) as the son of Zerubbable, son of Col. John Youngs. This is the only record to show a Mary Youngs Landon's will, 21 Mch., 1799, not probated, now in possession of Mrs. G. W. Dayton of Southold, L. I., makes bequests to sister Bethiah Swetland: Thomas, John, Joshua and Benjamin Yongs, Rhoda Brown, Mary Wadsworth, Elizabeth Vail and Jemima Ayer, being the children of my (her) brother Thomas Yongs, Mary Wickham, wife of John Wickham, and dau. of her sister Hannah, and to Mary, wife of Thomas Moore.

‡‡Griffin's Journal, p. 205.

that there was such a Zerubbable Youngs, and from the records of Joshua, as given under John No. 27, it evidently is an error.

It doubtless happened partly because of the long lapse of time (one hundred and eight years from the death of Joshua's father to the death of his son Thomas), and partly because no family records had been preserved; but mainly because of an entry in the MSS. Southold Town Records, which they probably had seen, and which later Mr. Charles B. Moore in collecting the material for his Indexes of 1698 found, and which he says he read as "John Youngs sonn Zofossbel Yongs born the 16th of May 1664."* Supposing this to mean Zerubbable, he thought it confirmed the record on the stone, and placed him as the son of Col. John; but when the town records were published and this entry read "John Yongs sonn to Joseph (Joseph instead of Zofossbel), Mr. Moore in his private copy of the Indexes struck out the birth date, and by an addition made Joshua to be the "son of Zrubbable or of John."

In 1714, by the will of his uncle Thomas Youngs, he came into possession of the 500 acre farm at Sterling, where he lived and died.

In 1715 he was in Militia Co. No. 3, and in 1737 he was on the list of Freeholders.

In 1738 he succeeded Benjamin Youngs as a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas.‡

On 5 Feb., 1718/19, he bought of Robert Griffing for £70, "one halfe part of those four lots of land situate in ye second division of Acquabauk lands formerly in ye right of John Swazey, late deceased," bounded north by the Sound, east by John Griffen, South by ye river or baye, and west by John Conkling."¶

This farm remained in the family for several generations, and is now owned in part by John Parker Terry, with residence on the South Road.

His will, 13 June, 1755, proved 3 July, 1755, names his wife Mary, bequeathing her his negro girl Jenny, and the use of his Aquebaug farm; son Thomas, bequeathing him the farm at Sterling, the Aquebaug farm after his wife's decease, and his silver tankard; daughters Mary Youngs, Elizabeth Vail and Bethiah Youngs, and granddaughter Mary Hazard, bequeathing them money.

Christopher Youngs was a farmer and inherited part of his father's farm at Aquebogue, L. I. In 1731 he subscribed to build the church at Aquebogue. In 1736/7 he sold land to John L'Hommedieu formerly belonging to his grandfather Nathaniel Moore. In 1737 he was on the list of Freeholders. After this he sold to his brother Daniel all or part of his farm (see will of his brother Daniel).

In 1749 he appears to have owned the land at Aquebogue, west of what was called Long Swamp, which had been in possession of his half-uncle Benjamin Youngs, and in that year the land lying to the east of it was sold by Israel Parshall to Jonathan Youngs.*

In 1755 he was named in the will of his brother Daniel as executor. In 1776 he was probably residing with his son James, who then had two males over fifty years of age in his family. His will, 23 Nov., 1774, proved 4 Oct., 1788, names his wife, son James, daughter Joanna Wells and son-in-law Daniel Wells. Rev. David Youngs graduated from Yale College in 1741. During that year a great revival occurred in the college under the preaching of Gilbert Tennant. Dr. Samuel Hopkins of Newport states that the members appeared to be unusually awakened, and several of them visited every room in the college and discoursed freely. The most zealous of these, he says, were Samuel Buell and David Youngs, his classmates, and David Brainard, but that Youngs excelled them in fervency of spirit and successful endeavors for the unconverted.* Brainard became the great missionary to the Indians, and Buell, the patriotic minister of Easthampton, L. I.

A letter to him from William Grant, shows that prior to his graduation he was interested in revival meetings held at the house of Henry Havens on Shelter Island.

On May 13, 1742, he read a Latin thesis before a voluntary convention at Hartford, Conn., and he, "Mr. David Youngs of Long Island," was licensed to preach the Gospel.* This thesis bears his signature, but he abbreviated his given name, and it reads "Da. Youngs."*

Da. Youngs

On Oct. 12, 1742, he was ordained pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Setauket, Brookhaven, L. I. A paper in his handwriting contains the "Profession of Faith," "The Covenant," a list of 42 members before his time, and of 55 additions in his time.*

He was their third pastor, and for ten years, until his death on the 18th of April, 1752, at the age of thirty-three, he ministered unto this people.

Setauket lies at the head of Setauket Harbor, and was the largest village in the township. It is situated on the north side of the island and was named from the Scatalecott tribe of Indians, who formerly occupied that territory. For many years it was the seat of government for Brookhaven.

The place was settled by a party of emigrants from Boston, Mass., in 1655, and a meeting house 28 feet square was built there about 1671, and in 1715 a new one was erected upon the same site, on the east side of the "green" in the old burying ground. The interior, as was common in those days, was without "ceiling or plaster." This structure remained until 1811 when it was replaced by the present one on the same site. It was of the Presbyterian denomination and connected with the Presbytery of Long Island.

Across the fields, perhaps a quarter of a mile eastward from the Presbyterian Church, stands the old parsonage in a quiet retreat near the harbor. This was built according to the record of the order "upon the land that was Goodman Moger's" and also set apart "to remain a parsonage house to perpetuity." It remained as such until 1874 when a new one was built near the church.

Here was the place where our zealous young minister performed the labors of his short life.† Settlements were springing up around it, and it was a center of activity at that time.

It was his custom to write out quite full sketches of his sermons on six leaves of paper $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches wide by 4 inches long, which made a little book of 12 pages. On the first page a margin was left, on which he noted the places where he preached them, and often the dates were given. From the dozen of these sermons which have been preserved we learn the character of his preaching.

The wrath of God, the terrors of hell and the awful doom of the damned held a prominent place in the preaching of that period, and we find that on two occasions he preached from the text, "There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth," Luke 13 : 28, in which he says, "that the damned in hell shall have such apprehension of the saints' happiness in heaven as shall dreadfully aggravate their own eternal misery." But it was the love of God that he delighted to tell of, and it was from such texts as:—"But it is good for me to draw near to Christ," Psalms 73 : 28; "He that hath the Son hath Life," 1st John 20 : 13; "For Christ also once suffered for sins the just for the unjust," 1 Pet. 3 : 18; "This is my beloved Son, hear ye him," Matt. 17 : 5; "But he that is joined unto the Lord, is one Spirit," 1 Cor. 6 : 17; and "That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance," Pro. 8 : 21," that he was continually preaching.

*Original paper in possession of Selah Youngs Jr. No. 1234.

†Hist. of Long Island, Prime, p. 222, 224. Suffolk County, Bayles, p. 236, 240.

Four of these sermons he delivered in nineteen separate places, and we find memoranda of his having preached in "Brookhaven, Smithtown, Milford, South Milford, Old Man, Haucabok, Oyster Pond, Cutchogue and Huntington.

The last date given is Nov., 1751, when he preached to his own Church from Psalms 73 : 28, and perhaps it was his last message to them.

His funeral sermon was preached from Heb. xiii. by the Rev. Napthali Dagget, then pastor of Smithtown, afterwards President of Yale College, and the original manuscript of it is now on file in the College with the date of his death (April 18th, 1752) endorsed upon it. Turning to this old sermon of a century and a half ago, we learn that he was worthy to take up the mantle that his ancestors Rev. Christopher and Rev. John Youngs laid down.

His friend Rev. Jonathan Barber, in a letter of condolence to his widow, dated Oyster Pond, May 4th, 1752, said, "A few days ago I received a letter which was wrote by your dear Husband Deceased when he was in Killingworth and as I cannot now pay the Debt of writing to him I thought I would send you a few lines," etc.

At the installation of his successor (Rev. Benjamin Tallmadge) the Rev. Mr. Brown, of Bridgehampton, in his charge to the people referred to the Rev. David Youngs as "your late pious and worthy pastor whose praise is still in the churches."*

No stone marks his grave, for during the Revolution a company of British soldiers occupied the church and cast up earthworks in the graveyard, and all the headstones were destroyed.*

Among his papers was the following receipt:—"New York, July 15th 1746, Received from The Revd. David Youngs by the hands of Mr. Edward King Two pounds, Ten shillings in full of all Demand £2. 10.

(Signed) THEOD^{rs} VAN WYCK."

On June 25th, 1752, Letters of Administration on his estate were granted to his widow Bethiah.

FACSIMILE OF SIGNATURE FROM LATIN THESIS

A few years after his death his widow Bethiah became the second wife of Judge Benjamin Halsey of Morristown, N. Y., who also had a family of young children. She took her four children there and they grew up and married in New Jersey. The eldest, David, returned to Moriches, Long Island, after the close of the Revolutionary War. By her second husband she had one child, Benjamin, who died at Newton, N. J., at the age of about 90. He had the Bible of the Rev. David Youngs containing his family record and from him it passed into the possession of his daughter Emily, who married Col. John Nyce of Hawley, Pa. Since she died all trace of it has been lost.

She wrote to Alfred Vail of Morristown, N. J., as follows:

Nyces, Pike Co., Pa., Aug. 5, 1858.

Dear Cousin:—

I received your letter last week concerning my father and grandparents' families. I will send you a copy of the record in a Bible that I presume was your great grandfather's, the Rev. David Youngs. I shall spell it just as it is written in the record.

ABSTRACT FROM LETTER OF WILLIAM GRANT.

Orphan House, Georgia, July 29th 1743.

Dear Mr. Youngs,—

I have oft thought and spoke of you, Especially When I remember your particular Love to me on Shelter Island. . . . I believe you have not forgot the Young Man that Kept School at Mr. Jonathan Havens Senr., who you was so kind (no doubt out of regard to my soul) to Invite to the Society at Henry Havens a little before you left the Island. I having shund yours and others of the Godleys Company for some time, you deesird I might read the 10th Chap to the Hebrews, and I think from the 23rd verse to the end. . . . I Joined with my Companions to Contemn and Ridicule you. . . . Went to Rhode Island and so to Sea. . . . Providence brought me to Philida., where with other Curious Hearers I was under the Preaching of dear Mr. Whitfield (about 1640), brought under Conviction again. I came with his family to Georgia, having been here some time. . . . I saw your letter when it first came to Dear Bro. Barber. . . . I wrote to Jonathan Terry. . . . I hear he is converted. My love to him and his dear wife and to the Deacon and his fimaly To Patience Havens and Husband, Henry Havens and his wife—to the woman that lives next Plantation to the Deacons on ye Right Hand. She used to tell me about Christ. You will doubtless see them not long after you receive this. Sometimes I find my heart much drawn out to the Children of God on Oyster Ponds. My love to them all. . . . Your Bro. in the Lord, William Grant.”

Had William Grant known the parents of David Youngs he probably would have mentioned them in the above letter.

ABSTRACT OF FUNERAL SERMON ON REV. DAVID YOUNGS BY REV. NAPHALI DAGGET.

By the strength of a good natural genius without any great opportunity of improving in knowledge, he arrived at such an insight into Spiritual things as to be justly esteemed a judicious Divine. His natural temper, which was sweetened by Divine Grace, seemed to be a little fountain of Love.

Benevolence and Friendship continually flowed out and refreshed all around him. He well knew how to be friendly in any case, and had a disposition that was equal to his knowledge; he was ye faithfulest of friends.

God designed him to plead ye cause of Truth and Righteousness; and how happily he was accomplished for this glorious employ. But few could plead the cause of God with equal skill and to so good purpose as he could. Indeed he no ways sought to please the ear of the polite and curious; he scorned all endeavors to please and gratify a vain curiosity. His ambition was too noble, and heavenly to let him stoop to so mean and worthless an employ; he had much rather affect and reach the heart than amuse and please the ear; and in this all knew he had uncommon skill. His great end and aim was to profit, edify and save precious souls which he so dearly loved, and in this most noble employ, God gave him an eminent faculty. How often have greatest sinners trembled and been pricked to ye heart while he has thundered the terrors of the Law in their ear, although without any angry tone, or any of that unholy zeal which arises from a morose and hasty natural temper, How often have they felt their stubborn hearts melted down while the invitation and Grace of the Gospel have flowed from him with irresistable influence. How skilled was he to speak a word in season to every case the believer or the sinner could be in; here certainly he well knew how to divide ye word aright and give to every one a portion in due season. And how faithful, how painful and laborious was he in his important business; How well did he fulfil that part of his charge, to be instant in season and out of season, and to exhort and warn every man daily, and from house to house! What a constant enemy was he to all vice. And how faithfully did he oppose every appearance of evil at all times; in all places and in all sorts of Company! He was a living preacher. How harmless, meek, heavenly and inoffensive was his whole behavior. His Christian conversation daily inforced all his exhortations. How justly may we here apply to him what the apostles say of themselves. 1 Thess. 2.10. "You are witnesses, and God also, how holily and justly and unblameably he behaved himself among you." So that ye contrary party by reason of his unblameable conduct and their candour, had no evil thing to say of him. How patient was he under all abuses and affronts! The servant of the Lord must not strive; and he had that qualification to an eminent degree. He had that noble revenge of forgiving injuries, and overcoming enemies by love. This meekness did not flow from mean cowardice, for he was bold as a lion in ye cause of God. In spite of envy he must be allowed to be a faithful exemplary man in the relation of a minister, a husband, a father, a neighbor, a friend and every other relation which he sustained, and in a word we may, we must give him the highest praise that ever was given to any mortal any say that he was, without any reasonable doubt, an eminently pious saint.

How has he spoken the word of God to you from this awful desk. When you cast your eyes, and look there, beloved, on his speechless corps, you can't but remember how that man has preached to you.

On 26 Nov., 1759, as "Nathaniel Youngs Junr." he was a witness to a deed of Samuel Conkling of Hashamommock, L. I.¶ (perhaps his father-in-law). In the census of 1776, his name appears between those of Benjamin Bailey and Joseph Prince, with one male over 50, one under 16, three females over 16, and one under 16, years in his family.

In 1775 he signed to support Congress. On 16 Sept., 1784, he gave a mortgage to Ezra L'Hommedieu for £310, s. 8. d. 8. for one year on eight acres of land near the head of the creek, bounded east by James Horton's, lately William Landon's, west by the lane that leads from the highway to the creek, north by lands of Richard Peters, and lands late of Robert Hempstead deceased, south by the creek, and the lane that leads from the head of the creek.^a Also four acres in Calves Neck, bounded north by the creek and Joseph Prince's lands, south by the creek, east by the creek, and west by the land of Daniel Booth, except about eight acres in said tract belonging to said Ezra L'Hommedieu, running across said Neck from north to south. Recorded 1788.||

On 13 Sept., 1786, he, Nathaniel, and John (probably his son) Youngs of Southold, gave a mortgage for £, 93; s. 4; d. 3, for one year, to John Conkling, on thirty acres of land at Hashamommock, L. I., bounded west by Samuel Tilletson, south by Eleazer Stanborough, east by John Conkling, and north by the Sound. This was acknowledged 8 June, 1819.

Abraham Youngs came from Oyster Bay to Middlesex (now Darian), Conn., before the Revolution. He is named in his mother's will in 1765, and bequeathed £3, and his children £25, to be equally divided between them. In Dec., 1776, he and his son Richard were minute men in Capt. Bell's Company,* and while attending church in Middlesex they were captured by the British and sent to New York, where they were imprisoned and fed on mouldy bread and water.†

His will, 1 May, 1801, proved 1 Sept., 1807, bequeathed all his property to his only son Richard, excepting £50 each to his daughters Phebe Bass, Sarah Hoyt, Susannah Squires and Hannah Youngs.‡

The inventory of his estate amounted to $1,728.00.‡

Jonathan Youngs came into possession of the farm of his father Jonathan, at Oyster Ponds, L. I., on giving a bond to support the latter. He was married in Sterling (now Greenport), L. I., and the following day his father gave a supper and dance, which is fully described in Griffin's Journal (p. 159). Some thirty couples came from Sterling on horseback, the ladies seated on pillions behind their partners, and they danced to the strains of "Guilderoy," "Money Musk," "Nancy Dawson," "Hunt the Squirrel" and "Devils Dream." In 1858 the house was still standing near the wharf at Orient.

His will, 10 Aug., 1761, proved 20 Sept., 1769, names his wife Martha, sons Jonathan, William and Samuel, bequeathing them lands; and daughters Martha, Mehetable, Hannah and Dorothy, and provides for his father's support.

His Bible contained his full family record as given.

His son William, by will, 13 Oct., 1774, left his estate to his brother Samuel, and his son Samuel, by will, 2 Jan., 1777, left his estate to his sisters, and afterward to his nephew Jeremiah Youngs.

312* xi BENJAMIN,⁷ b. Sterling, L. I., 1765; m. Philena Wheadon.

Judge Thomas Youngs was liberally educated and became one of the leading men of his time in Southold. After his death a unique and beautiful stone (see illustration) was erected to his memory in Sterling Cemetery, but, unfortunately, no family records of his ancestors, if kept, had been preserved, and the name of Zerubbable in his line of descent, as given on the stone, seems to have been an error. (For explanation, see John No. 27, and Joshua No. 76.)

From his father he inherited the farm at "Occobock," and the five hundred acre farm, and large manor house, on Sterling Creek, at Sterling (now Greenport), L. I., where he resided until his death.

He entered Yale College and graduated in 1741, after which he devoted himself to the management of his large estate.

On 29 Sept., 1762, he was appointed, by George III., Assistant Judge of the Superior Court of Common Pleas.¶ On 2 Apl., 1775, he was one of the sub-committee of three at Sag Harbor, who sent a request to Congress for cannon and ammunition.¶ At the same place, 15 Feb., 1776, he was chairman of the Committee of Safety, and sent a map of the east end of Long Island to Congress.†

In 1776, he was on the census list with 5 males, 5 females, and 3 slaves in his family. On 19 Dec., 1777, by order of Col. Hulet, of the British army, he was arrested at Southold, together with Christopher Brown and Rufus Tuthill, charged with having given information to, and harboring rebels. They were confined in the Provost Goal, New York. In 1778, they petitioned General Roberson for release, denying the charges, and later were released.‡ After this he was compelled by the British to assist in supplying forage.

On May 30, 1780, he signed the appeal sent out by the Senate and Assembly of New York in a circular letter, asking a loan to the State in subscriptions of not less than five hundred dollars each, to improve the condition and increase the efficiency of the army.§

In 1784, he was elected to the State Assembly. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and his letters to his daughters show that he was a devout man and very considerate of his family.‡

His will, 3 Feb., 1793, names his wife and all his children, bequeathing the real estate to his four sons, and £40 each to Thomas and Joshua, for the purpose of their giving one son each a college education.

- 316 iv RICHARD,⁷ Tubal, B. Southold, L. I., 6 Feb., 1769, son of Isaac.†

Isaac Youngs is doubtless the one whose name is in the Horton account book, April 10, 1768, as Isaac Youngs of the Township of Fairfield, Conn.,‡ and also in the Day Book of David Conkling, merchant of Southold, L. I., April, 1768, as Isaac Youngs Junior.§

Feb. 15th, 1762, there is mention of Isaac Young, of Fairfield, freemason, and he probably removed there about the time of his marriage.

His father died in May, 1768, which accounts for his being in Southold about that time, and also again in 1769, the year of his mother's death. The baptism of his son as "Richard Tubal," is doubtless an error in the name, as it evidently should be "Richard Hubbell," after the child's grandfather.

On Dec. 4, 1784, he was appointed to administer on the estate of Mary Youngs, widow of Joseph Youngs, late of Fairfield, Conn., deceased, represented as insolvent.*

Benjamin (and his brother Seth) removed from Connecticut to Schenectady, N. Y., where he lived some thirty-five years, following the occupation of silversmith.

In 1767, he was in Capt. Nicholas Groots' Company of Militia.† In 1806, he removed with his family to Watervliet, N. Y., where they all joined the Shaker Community.

A number of tall clocks, which he made, are now in possession of the Shakers.

His only grandchild (and last descendant), was Alexander (son of Alexander Youngs and Mary Elizabeth Damph), who was an honored member of the Shakers.

In the back of an account book, which he kept while a silversmith, is his family record, extending back to the Rev. John Youngs. This book he gave to his grandson Alexander, who gave it to its present owner, Isaac Anstall, of Shakers, N. Y.‡

John Youngs removed from Connecticut to Balston, N. Y. He enlisted in the Revolutionary War at Balston, and served as a private and sergeant under Capt. Collins and Col. White.

After the close of the war, in 1788, he received a land warrant, and settled on the Military tract, Lot 62, Town of Manlius, N. Y.

It was then an unbroken forest, and he was the first settler in that part of the town.

As his sons grew up they settled around him and the place for some years was called Youngsville. When a post office was established there in 1814 it was changed to Orville.

He was a justice of the peace, a member of the first masonic lodge known as Military Lodge No. 93, and mainly instrumental in the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to which he gave the land for a building.

The records of his descendants have been furnished by his granddaughter Mrs. Cordelia Youngs Willard.

Mrs. Willard also composed the following ballad which was sung on the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Onondaga County.

1794—CENTENNIAL SONG—1894.

Air, "Auld Lang Syne."

Should old-time memories be forgot
And never brought to mind,
Should olden friendships fade away
With days of auld lang syne?

Chorus—

For love of olden times, good friends;
For love of kindred dear;
For love of native heath and home,
We'll keep this hundredth year.

From Onondaga's fertile vales,
From hills of purple hue
We come with songs and legends old
To keep the day with you.
Fair city, set around by hills
With emerald beauty crowned,
The pride of daughters and of sons
Wherever they are found.

Our grand sires chose this favored spot
Without a thought in mind
Of railroads or of telegraphs
That now our cities bind.
And Erie's placid winding course
Was planned and made complete,
When Clinton was the Governor
And ruled the Empire State.

We call to mind from distant years
Quaint legends, now of yore,

When training days and ginger-bread
Were like a feast galore;
When pockets with a shilling lined,
And heads with straw hat crowned,
They trudged on foot five miles or more
To reach the training ground.

Oh! Halcyon days of memory,
With tints of roseate light,
When "quilting frolics," "husking bees,"
Were hailed with pure delight;
When mothers wrought at loom and wheel,
And daughters shared the toil,
And boys were happy and content
To cultivate the soil.

The shuttle of the loom is still,
The wheel is set aside;
And busy hands are resting now
That toiled 'till eventide.
Their names are carved on marble pure
Beside the hill-side way,
And stars keep watch above, the while
They sleep the years away.

Chorus—

For love of olden times, good friends,
For love of kindred dear;
For love of native heath and home
We'll keep this hundredth year.

Joseph Youngs was a carpenter by trade, and when he came of age Long Island was in possession of the British, which was probably the reason of his going to Killingworth, Conn. He became a member of the M. E. Church, was an ensign in the Train Band in 1787, and was married there to Chloe Griswold, whose ancestors held livings in the Church of England, and had an escutcheon and a coat of arms.

In 1796, he removed to a hamlet called Eatonville, and sometimes Eaton's Bush, Fairfield Township, N. Y., where he had a grist mill, cabinet shop, and house, and where thirteen of his children grew to maturity.

He was a gentleman of the old school, a Federalist in politics, dignified, upright, and strict in his religious duties. His portrait was painted by his son Benjamin, and is now in possession of William A. Youngs, of Ripley, N. Y. (See portrait.)

Rev. Daniel was usually called Priest Young, and was settled over the Congregational Church (Steeple Church) at Aquebogue, L. I. Griffin tells us that "he was a noble-looking man, wore a handsome wig, and was dignified, solemn, yet pleasing in manner."*

He was not educated for the ministry, but became impressed that it was his duty to preach the Gospel, and was ordained in 1783. He was a man of considerable powers and influence, and was at the head of his denomination on Long Island. His reasoning was strong, his language forcible and often sublime.† He died in the 38th year of his ministry, and the 33rd of his pastorate of the Aquebogue Church.* By his father's will he inherited the farm at Aquebogue. In 1775, he engaged to support Congress.‡ In 1776, he was on the census list with seven adults and five children in his family.§ His will, 17 Feb., 1807, proved 14 Nov., 1814, names wife Mary, sons Daniel, Caleb, Asaph, John, and daughters Kate Moore, Huldah Downs, and Phebe and Lydia Youngs.§ His Bible containing his family records, is in possession of Aseph M. Young. His slave, Brister Young, died 15 Feb., 1839, aged 80 years. Gravestone Aquebogue.

416* iv DAVID,⁷ b. Morristown, 9 Jan., 1780; B. 23 Jan., 1780;* m. Mary Petty.

Deacon David Youngs' mother married Judge Benjamin Halsey, of Morristown, N. J., and of his family David Youngs became a member. He was married at the Tucker residence, about a quarter of a mile from the old parsonage, in Hanover, N. J., by the Rev. Jacob Green, whose wife in relating the incident said, "he took his hat and cane one evening, and went out; when he returned he said, 'There is no more Betty Tucker, for I have married her.' "* On 23 Feb., 1772, he and his wife were received as half members by the First Presbyterian Church of Morristown,† and their children were baptized there.†

A copy of his Bible family record is in possession of his grandson, Edward Youngs.

At the beginning of the Revolutionary War, he was probably keeping a store in Morristown, N. J., and his half brother, Benjamin Halsey, Jr. (who

His name is on the official Roster of the State Militia of New Jersey as "David Youngs, Sergeant, Eastern Battalion Morris Co.§ He was afterward a captain, but no official record has been preserved. His daughter Bethiah related to her children that her father lived near Morristown, N. J., and was in the Revolutionary War (State Troops) seven years; had charge of the fort at Morristown, and in after years used to sing the marches to his children.* He was a good man, and after he removed to Moriches, L. I., (at the close of the war) he was a deacon of the Presbyterian Church at Fire Place, eight miles distant, to which he often walked. He kept a store and tavern there and after his death it was sold. From his estate, after settling with his widow, each of his daughters received $600 and his son $1,200.*

His will, 29 Aug., 1796, proved 20 Sept., 1796, names wife Catherine, daughters Elizabeth Decker and Bethiah Havens and son David.† He was a powerful, but quiet man, and died of yellow fevre.*

Captain Daniel Youngs was brought up by his uncle, Thomas Youngs, and at his death inherited the "Old Homestead" and farm at Cove Neck. It is related that he was a terror to the Hessian soldiers (who were stationed at Oyster Bay during the Revolution), after their first attempt to steal juice from his cider press.* He was a Captain of Militia before the Revolution, and in 1776 signed to support Congress, but after the Battle of Long Island and the British were in possession, he, like others, who did not enter the Continental Army or flee the Island, was compelled to take the oath of allegiance and act under British orders. On April 23, 1790, when on his tour through Long Island, Washington stopped at his home over night, and made this entry of it in his diary, "proceeding to Oyster Bay, to the house of Capt. Daniel Young, at the Cove, private and very neat and decent, where we lodged." His daughter Kezia, then a blooming girl of seventeen years, was favored with a hearty kiss by the General on his departure. Captain Daniel's wife survived him nearly forty years, and often related how she entertained "The Father of his Country."† near Greenport. It adjoined the farm of Major Calvin Moore, on the west, and extended to the Bay. In 1782, he mortgaged it to Nicoll Havens for £290, his wife Mehetable signing with him,* and before 1810, after being in the family for five generations, it was in possession of David Fanning.* In 1775 he engaged to support Congress,† and in 1776 he was on the census list with one male, two females, and six children in his family.‡ He was in Lieut. Joshua Young's Company of Militia,§ and after the Battle of Long Island, he fled to Connecticut, and on June 12, 1777, signed the Saybrook petition to Congress for relief.|| After his death his widow lived with her daughter Mehetable, and her grandson David Billard writes of hearing her tell of a large painting of a Youngs ancestor in uniform hanging in their house, and of how during the Revolutionary War, when the British landed there, they on entering their house and seeing the portrait of an officer, saluted it, and retired without molesting them.

After the death of John Fitz Youngs, his son John came down from Coxsackie, N. Y., and took the painting home with him, and had the head repainted on a panel. The granddaughter of John Fitz Young, Mehetable, daughter of William Youngs, was brought up by her uncle John Youngs in Coxsackie, and states that she saw the portrait, and that it was the likeness of a man painted on canvas, about four feet square, and very much defaced, and that she heard her uncle John say that "it ought to be taken care of for there was a legacy for the heirs." After the death of her uncle John, who left no son, his nephew and executor, Jacob Armstrong, when he removed to Ohio, nailed the portrait over a box of goods, and it was lost. The board having the head painted on it became warped and split, and was sent to the garret. The painting was probably a portrait of Col. John Youngs.

Deacon Thomas Youngs lived on the farm at Aquebogue near Riverhead, until the death of his father in 1793, when he removed to the farm at Sterling. He was a deacon of the church at Aquebogue, and seven of his children were baptized there.§ He bought out his brothers' interest in the farm at Sterling, and so possessed the entire tract and spent the remainder of his life there. His wife Lydia, daughter of John and Rebecca (Lambert) Tuthill, inherited from her father a farm at Oysterponds, which Thomas exchanged with his brother John for his share in the Sterling farm. In 1775, he signed to support Congress.¶ His will, June 8, 1814, proved Mch. 15, 1816, names his wife and eight children, and leaves his estate to them, and the farm, which had remained intact through five generations, was divided up, and in 1892 was owned by eight of his descendants and six others.

Capt. Joshua Youngs, in 1775, signed to support Congress.* He was a Lieut. in Capt. Jonathan Bailey's Militia Company, Col. Thomas Terry's Regiment,|| and in 1776 he and part of his company joined Col. Josiah Smith's regiment of minute men, marched through the Island, and arrived at Brooklyn in time to take part in the Battle of Long Island on August 27th.‡ He remained in the service throughout the war, became a captain,‡ and was captured together with his company. After the war he took the "Deering farm" on Shelter Island, but in 1785, he removed to Farmington, Conn., where he bought a farm of four hundred acres in the west part of the town. He owned several negro slaves and lived there until he died, thirty-six years later. Although not a church member, he was a devout man, and a good citizen, and kept a Bible family record.§

Rev. Seth Young was a minister of the Gospel in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and traveled long circuits in sparsely settled districts.

He acquired his education mainly by studying on horseback, while taking those long lonely rides.

a Mrs. Cordelia Young Willard is one of the noted women of her time, in connection with mission work. A graduate of Cozenovia Seminary and highly educated, she has devoted a large part of her time in organizing and as President in conducting the work of the "Woman's Foreign Missionary Society" and the "Woman's Home Missionary Work" of the City, District, and Central N. Y. Conference of the M. E. Church.

It was her suggestion and mainly by her efforts that the "Peck Memorial Home" in New Orleans was built for the education of the colored girls.

Of a poetic temperament, she sees the ideal in all that makes for good, and often interprets it in poems, for those who are near to her, or for special occasions.

Her lovely Christian character and life has been a joy and a benediction, not only to her home circle, but to a host of friends, and it surely was a "Golden Wedding" day that a few years since marked the fifty years of her wedded life.

It is to her love of the Youngs family that the descendants of her great grandfather Seth Young are indebted, for the memories and records of the past and present generations of that branch, as inscribed in these pages. (See portrait.)

MRS. JAMES L. WILLARD
NEE CORDELIA YOUNG

His daughter Cordelia recalls him, as a middle-sized man, quiet and dignified, but tender and affectionate to his family. On the land in Orville, N. Y., which he inherited from his father, he erected the homestead in which he lived, and which is now in possession of his daughter Mrs. Cordelia Y. Willard.

His family was not only a well educated, but a talented one, each having some special gift, such as painting, teaching, poetry, etc. All of them were musical, making a double quartette, and on Saturday evenings they rehearsed for the service of the coming Sabbath; but best of all was the bond of affection that united them, and which time and change have not weakened.

a Eliza S. Young was the first love and the fifth wife of Luke Parsons (all named Eliza) whom she married Feb. 6, 1867. She first declined him on account of her father being left a widower by the death of her mother. She was a noble, Christian woman, of a lively disposition, and particularly fond of her relatives. For her love and many acts of kindness to him the author here records his gratitude and regard.

Stephen Young was born at Malapardis, near Whippany, N. J., on a farm which later he inherited from his father, and on which he lived for nearly ninety-three years. He was a farmer, carpenter and builder, and also owned a saw mill. He was large of stature, of fine presence, genial in disposition, and for his strict integrity and fairness, he was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He joined the First Presbyterian Church of Morristown, June 27, 1808, and was elected an elder in 1812.* He knew all of the children and grandchildren of his grandfather, Rev. David Youngs, and kept full records of his descendants. He was the first of that branch to drop the final "s" from his surname. Nearly twenty years before his death he hunted up the descendants of his uncle, David Youngs, who had returned to Long Island, the native place of the Youngs, and together with his cousin, Capt. Selah Youngs, had the inscription re-cut on the altar tomb of their ancestor, Rev. John Youngs, of Southold, L. I. During the Civil War he was intensely patriotic and a warm supporter of President Lincoln. The author, when on a visit, took a walk about his farm with him after he had passed his ninety-first year. His Bible record shows that he dropped the final "s" from his name about 1831, and thereafter wrote it "Young." He was full of years, honored and beloved, when he took his departure.

Abijah Young was a carpenter and builder in Newark, N. J., until 1818, when he bought a farm, saw and grist mill at Drakesville, N. J., which he conducted until his death. He was a member of the Methodist Church of Stanhope, N. J., and a Justice of the Peace.

a Theodore E. Young inherited the estate of his father in Drakesville, N. J., which he later disposed of, and for some years successfully conducted a planing mill and lumber business in Bayonne, N. J. In 1900 he retired from business, and since then has travelled considerably and spent the winters in the South. In manner he is frank and genial and is always a welcome visitor in the homes of his friends.

a Rebecca Jane Youngs in Oct., 1864 or 7, wrote to Henry Little, a Baptist minister, from Shiloh Village, Cumberland Co., N. J., telling of her visit to her Aunt Elizabeth, in Darien. She lost her sister Keziah, her father (Frederick) and her mother, and later her brother Collins Smith Youngs, who died in Aug., the year the letter was written. She tells that "Uncle Luther Youngs, papa's brother, was on to see us four years ago from Buffalo." Collins Smith Youngs sold his farm, except five acres, on which he built a house, where he lived with his sisters until he died. She inquires after the families of "Capt. George Wallace and William Capes, married to papa's cousins." These two gentlemen married the only daughters of Phebe Carter.*

Daniel Youngs was a prosperous farmer at Oyster Bay, L. I., and was much interested in raising blooded stock. His Durham cattle took several premiums at the Queens County fair in 1822. He was for many years Justice of the Peace and was familiarly known as Esquire. He was a wise counsellor, and the complaints brought before him were nearly all amicably settled by his advice. The largest amount of fees received in one year was five dollars.* (See portrait.)

Capt. Jeremiah Youngs was the favorite of his two bachelor uncles William and Samuel Youngs, and when seventeen years of age he inherited from them a fine farm of one hundred acres with buildings thereon, in Orient. He was captain of the militia company, and in the summer of 1814, when Commodore Decatur's fleet of three ships, the United States, Macedonian, and Hornet, lay at anchor in Long Island Sound, opposite Truman's Beach near Brown's Hills, he visited the flag ship and presented the Commodore with a fine sheep.†

879 ii SUSAN MARY,⁹ b. after 1836.

John I. Youngs learned the trade of tanner and shoemaker in Greenport, L. I., and soon after removed to New Baltimore, N. Y., where he followed his trade and acquired considerable property. Later he kept a tavern and finally retired upon a farm.

On the death of his father he visited his native place and took home with him the old ancestral portrait, a cane with an ivory handle and a silver ferule on which was an inscription. They both probably belonged to Col. John Youngs.

He told his niece, Mehetable Youngs, whom he brought up, that the portrait "ought to be taken care of for there was a legacy for the heirs."* This seems to be the foundation of the tradition that there was a fortune left in England by some of the family. His nephew, Jonathan Andrew Youngs, who also was brought up by him, attempted to learn more about it, but without success.

His will, proved 1847, names wife Rachel and daughters Rachel Ann and Susan Mary. After his death, Jacob Armstrong, one of his executors, on removing West nailed the portrait over a box of goods and it was lost.*

James Youngs was a farmer, and also in the produce and fish business. He lived in the house his mother moved to about 1807. It was in the western part of Greenport, about one mile west of the road which runs down to Greenport. The house stood on the south side of the road, opposite the premises of Thomas Conklin.‡ His Bible containing his family record is in the possession of Mrs. H. H. Smith, of New Haven, Conn., widow of his son Jonathan.

Benjamin F. Youngs inherited from his father part of the large farm at Sterling, L. I., and resided on it until about 1850, when he sold it to D. G. Floyd and removed to Pen Yan, N. Y., where he bought a flour mill. Later he sold the mill and bought a small farm at Dresden, N. Y.

In 1853, he and his wife and several of their children united with the Presbyterian Church there. He was a man of lovable nature, and too mindful of others for his own good. The author's mother loved to visit them before they left Greenport, and their daughter Mary was her particular friend.

REV. EZRA YOUNGS

925 vii AMELIA S.,⁹ res. Cutchogue, L. I., 1906.

Rev. Ezra Youngs was born on the farm at Aquebogue, L. I. He graduated from the College of New Jersey in 1815, and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1820. On June 4, 1819, he united with the church at Southold, and was licensed by Andover and received by the Presbytery of Long Island at Sag Harbor August 27, 1823.

He preached for some time on Shelter Island, where he married his wife, who was a descendant of Mathias Nicoll, Mayor of New York in 1672, and first secretary of the Province of New York. On the 27th of August, 1828, he was ordained at Cutchogue as pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and for forty-eight years, until the close of his life, he faithfully served that congregation. When the author first knew him, fifty years ago, he was a striking figure, with his clear, blue eyes, and snow-white hair falling down over his collar. (See portrait.)

529 JACOB,⁸ (Thomas,⁷⁻⁶ Joshua,⁵ John,⁴ Col. John,³ Rev. John,² *Rev. Christopher*¹), b. Greenport, L. I., 10 Aug., 1794; d. 928 iii HARRIET NEWELL,⁹ b. 28 July, 1838; unm.; res. Greenport, L. I., 1906. She has furnished most of the records of the descendants of her great-grandfather, Thomas Youngs.

Jacob Youngs by his father's will inherited part of the 500-acre farm at Sterling (Greenport), L. I., and he resided upon it and bequeathed it to his children.

In 1833 he was one of the fourteen trustees who organized the Presbyterian Church in Greenport, and was an elder in it for fifty-three years, helping to officiate when over 93 years of age. He survived all of the original number save one, and died after a brief illness.

In early life he taught school and was a clerk in a store, but afterwards settled down as a farmer on the paternal estate. During the War of 1812 he went with his Company to Sag Harbor, L. I., but procured a substitute and did not enter the service.

Deacon William Young inherited from his father the western part of his farm, and resided upon it his entire life. He was a man of strong re-religious convictions, and for twenty years was a deacon of the Congregational Church of Orient. He brought up a large family who, following in his footsteps, have been most zealous workers in the Church, and two of them have made remarkable records. His eldest daughter, Mrs. Elmira Tuthill, is now serving her fifty-second year as President of the Ladies' Society, and as a loving recognition of his daughter Rhoda's half century as organist the Church has recently erected a memorial window. Long terms of service have been rendered in various positions of trust by other members, and the family are about to place a beautiful window in the church in memory of their father and mother. Rev. Erasmus Darwin Young received a common school education in his native village. After the death of his father, his mother with her seven children removed near to the village of Birmingham, Mich. About 1842, he married and purchased a farm. In 1845 his young wife and child died, and he gladly accepted an invitation of a friend to visit his field of missionary work among the Indians. This led to his being installed as teacher in an Indian school, and three years later he was appointed missionary in charge of the Kazier Indian Mission at Ne-be-Sing (place of water) in Lapur Co., Mich.

The tribe were the Ojibways, who had come from Canada. In 1847 he married Miss Mary Johnson, and they learned the Indian language, and labored there for eight years. For some years after this he had appointments where he had educational advantages for his children. He then returned, for three years, to mission work among the Chippewas and Ottawas on a reservation near Saganaw Bay. Although he found the Indians ignorant and superstitious, he did not find it difficult to impress them with gospel truths, especially the Chippewas. He belonged to the Michigan Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and for the following twenty-six years his work was among the churches of that State. After forty-six years of uninterrupted labor, his health became impaired, and in 1889, at his request he was placed on the retired list, "and now life's pilgrimage ended, they rest in the Lord."*

Col. Van Eps Young at the breaking out of the Rebellion aided in raising troops in Sheboygan Falls, Wis., and in 1861-2 he assisted in organizing the 17th Wisconsin Infantry at Madison, Wis.

On March 18th, 1862, he was mustered in as 1st Lieut., Co. H, 14th Wisconsin Infantry. When the first day's battle of Shiloh was fought on the first Sunday of the following month, this regiment of raw troops was at Savannah, nine miles distant. Without waiting for a supply of rations they were taken by steamer to Pittsburgh Landing, and arrived there after dark in a pouring rain, and encamped on the bluffs, where they remained standing all night without covering of any kind, and surrounded by the routed troops and the dead and wounded of the day's battle.

At daybreak they were ordered to the front and placed in line with their right resting on the road to Shiloh church, which was enfiladed by a battery of three 12-pound brass guns, on a hill a quarter of a mile off. Three times the regiment charged and took the battery before they held it, and in the day's fight out of about 600 men they lost 146. Major Hancock, Capt. Pollis, Capt. Coll and Lieut. Young were the only officers left in command. After the battle, as a reward for their achievement, Gen. Halleck gave the regiment the gun which Lieut. Staley had spiked, and it is now at Madison, Wis.

He was appointed acting adjt. May, 1862, and commissioned Sept. 17, 1862, with rank from July, 1862. Mustered in Lt.-Col. May 8, 1863, organized the 10th Regt. La. Vol. Infantry, colored, subsequently the 48th U. S. Infantry. Mustered in Col. 11th Regt. La. Vol., Oct. 8, 1863, subsequently the 49th U. S. Colored Infantry.

He commanded a brigade at Vicksburgh in 1864, and in the fall of that year was appointed Prov Marshal General for the Western district of Miss. Served as such in Memphis during the winters of 1864 and 1865. Commanded the post of Jackson, Miss., and paroled the Confederate troops on surrender. Commanded the post of Meridian, also Columbus, Miss. Lastly, was in command of Vicksburgh. Mustered out and honorably discharged June 14th, 1866, at Vicksburgh, Miss.

After the war he was County Clerk of Sheboygan, Wis., and afterwards elected State Senator of the first district.* (See portrait.)

Elijah Ford Young attended the district and high school at Parkman, Ohio, after which he took two terms at the Farmington Academy. He then took his father's place in the grist mill until the latter's death, after which he removed to Cleveland, O., and entered a dry goods and carpet store, where he became chief clerk in 1862. He then became a commercial accountant until 1897, when he retired.

He was a member of the Euclid Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, and sang in the choir, and taught in the Sabbath school.

He was one of the organizers of the Young Men's Christian Association in 1853, and was its first secretary, and was also secretary of the Cleveland branch of the American Bible Society.

He was a total abstainer from all intoxicating beverages, and from tobacco in every form. He was a Republican in politics, and was in the 100 days' service in 1864, in the 150th O. V. I., and he was also a member of the Ohio National Guard.

He was interested in the family history, and collected and furnished the author with the records of his grandfather Joseph Youngs' descendants.

It was a pleasure and an inspiration to know him, and few men have lived so noble a life, or filled their place in the world so well.

His wife, who survives him, is descended from a family in England who have borne a coat of arms for centuries.

Thomas Young, Major and Judge, was born and spent his youth in the charming, peaceful farming district of Franklinville (now Laurel), L. I. It was scarcely a village, but for its "Franklinville Academy" it was known far and wide, and from it Mr. Young graduated. He entered Yale in 1859, and graduated in the class of 1863.

The War of the Rebellion was upon us and he offered his services to the government, and, passing a creditable examination at Washington, was commissioned by N. Y. State, 1st Lieut of the 8th U. S. Colored Infantry, on Nov. 20th, 1863. He was sent to Florida and, under Gen. Seymour, was in the battle of Olustee, and had his clothes pierced by bullets, but was uninjured.

In August, 1864, he was in the Army of the James in front of Richmond, and participated in a number of engagements. On Oct. 21st of that year he was promoted to a captaincy, and in Jan., 1865, was ordered on special duty, and organized a company of sharpshooters armed with Sharps rifles, which he commanded.

On Mch. 23, 1865, he was promoted to Major of the 127th Regiment, U. S. Colored Infantry. Having served throughout the war, he was mustered out in Sept. of that year. He then entered the Albany Law School, graduated in 1866, and took up the practice of law at Huntington, L. I. In that profession and as County Judge of Suffolk County, to which office he was elected, he has had a long and honorable career.

Rev. Christopher Young on March 11th, 1826, at the age of seventeen, united with the Congregational Church at Bating Hollow, L. I., and soon after this he, with others, planned and started the first Sabbath School in that church. On each Lord's Day he brought the library in his arms four miles on foot. Without the advantages of a college or seminary course, he studied the higher English branches, the languages and theology, and was licensed on Oct. 22nd, 1829, and ordained in July, 1830.

His principal places of labor were Frankfort and Wantage, N. J., and Bating Hollow, L. I. The last fifteen years of his fifty-five years' ministry were spent in the latter place, during which time a new parsonage and church were erected.

His wife was truly a help-meet, and together they labored, and saw their golden wedding day and four years more ere he was called to his reward.

Capt. David Young when a boy was put out to learn the blacksmith's trade, at Bridgehampton, L. I., but when his apprenticeship was at an end, the whaling business offered better opportunities, and he went to sea as a common sailor.

He rose rapidly, and in ten years was captain of the ship "Henry," in which he made two voyages, and having gained a competency, he retired. In 1844 he removed to Jefferson, N. Y., where his two aunts and brother Edward were living, and bought a farm, on which he spent the remainder of his life. About the time he removed to Jefferson he dropped the final s from his name.

He was a man of unblemished character, and a prominent member of the Methodist Church.

Capt. Selah Youngs when a boy was put out to Squire Theophilus Smith, a farmer of Moriches, L. I., and removed with him to Easthampton, L. I.

When fourteen years of age he was apprenticed to Deacon Chapman Rogers, of Sag Harbor, and for seven years lived in his family, and learned the hatter's trade. During these seven years he attended night school, and obtained a fair education.

The whaling business at that time offered the best opportunity for ambitious young men, and on June 23, 1832, soon after becoming of age, he sailed before the mast on the ship "Delta," of Greenport, L. I., on a whaling voyage at the 150th lay. He made other voyages on her and on the "Gem," the "Daniel Webster," the "Romulus" and the "Hamilton," of Sag Harbor. In ten years he had made eight voyages, and risen through all the under grades of officers. His ninth voyage was made as captain of the ship "Harvest," at the 16th lay. We quote two entries from his log book: "1842, July 21, Thursday, left Bridgeport in the Harvest, all hands on board, 22 in all." . . . "Dec., 23, 1843. 531 days out. Lat. 37.30. Long. 68.00. Two last whales and full Bark. No. 33, whale 70 bbls, No. 34, whale, 70 bbls, strong W. wind, Steering to the Northeast. At 1 P. M. saw 2 whales. Madey struck one Mr. Brooks killed, (the whale) I struck the other, took both alongside and commenced cutting just as the sun rose in the morning, both good whales and enough to fill everything full. So we took our departure for home. Good speed to the Harvest."

†His Bible Record.

In August, 1844, he sailed from Bridgeport, Conn., as captain of the ship "Steiglitz" with a crew of twenty-seven men. It was a large ship, 118 feet long and 25 feet broad, and carried five thousand barrels of oil. In the first year out they encountered a typhoon that partly dismantled the ship, and they made the port of Sidney, N. S. W., leaking one hundred and twenty-five strokes an hour.

Three months were required for repairs and the laborers were paid weekly. New South Wales was at that time an English penal colony, and each Saturday Capt. Youngs walked from the consul's office to the ship with a bag of gold in one hand and a revolver in the other.

When ready to resume the voyage part of the crew deserted, and a reward was offered for their return. Some of them were tracked with bloodhounds by the natives and brought back, and the crew was made up by taking ex-convicts whose terms had expired. When at sea these latter mutinied and seven of them were put in the hold in irons, but no blood was shed.

In this voyage he circumnavigated the globe, rounding both capes Horn and Good Hope, and visited many lands and islands, some of which were still in a state of barbarism. After an absence of fifty-two months he returned with a full shipload and a profitable cargo. When second mate of the ship "Daniel Webster," in which he owned a share, its captain, Stratton Harlow, was killed by a whale off the coast of Chili, and the first mate, Edward M. Baker, took command. The feeling of the crew was intense for abandoning the voyage, and for over a week neither Mr. Baker or Mr. Youngs, either night or day, left the deck at the same time, and in after years Capt. Baker spoke in highest praise and appreciation of Capt. Youngs' courage in supporting him in completing the voyage under such trying circumstances.

He was a constant reader of the Bible, and during these voyages he read it through consecutively at least three times, and could turn to almost any passage from memory.

Having acquired what for those times was a competency, and desiring to be with his family, he retired from the sea at the early age of forty.

He owned a house on Main street, Sag Harbor, but on October 16th, 1849, he bought a farm of 180 acres at Mapes Neck, Mattituck, L. I., bordering for a mile on Mattituck Bay, and to this beautiful spot, where nature had assembled land and sky and water in lovely combination, he took his family, and here his children grew up.^a

^a Mapes Neck took its name from its first white owner, Thomas Mapes. It was part of a tract of 500 acres extending from the Sound to Peconic Bay, and was his share in the "Occabauck Divident" laid out by the town in 1661. (Southold Town Rec., i. pp. 108, 350-2.) This locality was a favorite hunting and fishing ground of the Indians, and many arrow heads have been found here. Thomas Mapes' son Jabez was the first white man to settle upon it, and he was succeeded

TERRY HOMESTEAD, ORIENT, L. I.

For nearly forty-seven years (except for a short voyage in 1852 as captain of the bark "Odd Fellow," at the fourteenth lay) he lived the quiet happy life of a farmer. After 1865, under the influence of his cousin Stephen Youngs, he often left off the final "s" in signing his name.

In person he was of medium height and weight, quick of movement, with dark brown eyes, and in his prime his hair was nearly black. In manner he was genial, but always self-possessed and, being of a cheerful disposition with a vein of humor, he looked on the bright side of life, and was the friend of everyone and had no enemy. He could be firm without anger, gentle without weakness, and was never known to use coarse or profane language, but was always the gentleman both in speech and manner.

While a man of strong character, his most prominent traits were his trust in God, and his love for his family. In 1889 he and his wife celebrated their golden wedding with their children around them,* and for seven years more they traveled life's journey together.

For many years he was an elder in the Presbyterian Church at Mattituck and the leader of the adult Bible class.

He was vigorous and active until the last two years of his life, and his mental faculties were unimpaired. But the closing days drew on, and after weeks of pain, he turned to his loved ones a face radiant with love and faith, and in that moment that which was mortal put on immortality.

His widow, Sybil Wiggins Terry Youngs, survived him nearly ten years, and lacked but four months of ninety years. She joined the Presbyterian Church of Sag Harbor, and took her letter to the church at Mattituck. She was a woman of great purity of thought and speech and a devoted wife and mother, and unceasing in her efforts to make them happy. She early taught her children to kneel at her knee in prayer and impressed upon them the value of honesty, truthfulness and neatness. Her mother was the daughter of John and Patience (Van Scoy) Payne, of North Haven, L. I., and her father, Joshua Terry, was the son of Thomas and Julia (Wiggins) Terry, and grandson of Col. Thomas and Sybil (King) Terry, of Orient, L. I. Col. Terry was a captain in the French and Indian War of 1747, and a colonel at the outbreak of the Revolution. He assisted in organizing the continental troops on Long Island, and died in 1777.

by his son Joseph, who owned five slaves, had large flocks of sheep, and built miles of ditches and hedges, many of which can still be seen. Joseph Mapes, the fourth owner, died in 1783, and it passed into the possession of Timothy Davis, who was succeeded by his sons Timothy and Parshall Davis, who sold it to Richard Cox, of Oyster Bay, and he settled his sons Samuel, Allen and Stephen Cox upon it. In recent years it has come to be known as Cox's Neck.

*See group taken that day in the old homestead.

Col. Terry was the third of the name to occupy the Terry homestead, at Orient, L. I., which is a representative of the best houses of that period in Orient. It was built before the year 1700, and is still standing. The illustration is from a photograph furnished by Mr. Caleb A. Dyer, a Terry descendant.

Daniel Kelsey Youngs was intended by his parents for a profession, and with that end in view graduated from the Oyster Bay Academy, and although a most proficient student he preferred the freedom of outdoor life, and at the early age of 16 undertook the management of his father's large farm, which he improved to such an extent that it became known as the model farm of Long Island. He was particularly interested in small fruits and market gardening, and was an authority throughout the United States on the culture of asparagus. He was one of the founders, the first treasurer, and later president of the Queens County Agricultural Society, and was the author of numerous pamphlets and essays on practical agriculture. In his later years he expressed to the author the pride he took in the success he had attained along those lines. He contributed many articles for metropolitan and agricultural papers, and continued all his life to study and have an interest in classic authors and literature. He was a man of exceptional ability and probity of character, and was looked up to as one of Long Island's foremost men. He was for half a century a warden and vestryman of Christ Church, Oyster Bay. He had a great affection for the old homestead, which six generations of the Youngs family had occupied, but even higher than that was the regard in which he held the family name; and it was to preserve the recollection of the family, in Oyster Bay, that led him to write and publish, gratuitously, "The Oyster Bay Youngs Record." The writing and publication of this book occupied seven years of his life, and fortunately was completed just before his death.

In bearing he was courteous and dignified. His manners were those of a thorough old-fashioned country gentleman. He scorned a lie or anything which savored of dishonorable practices, and departed full of years with the love and respect of every person who ever knew him. (See portrait.)

815 HENRY,⁸ (Henry,⁷⁻⁵ Gideon,⁴⁻³ Capt. Joseph,² *Rev. Christopher*¹), b. Goshen, N. Y., 11 Jan., 1790; d. s. p. New York City, 3 Nov., 1868; m. Charlotte (dau. of John and Catherine Creamer) Young,^a of New York City, who died before him. She and his brother Oliver's wife were sisters. No children.

Henry Youngs was the eldest of three brothers, who all left the farm in Goshen to seek their fortunes in New York City. Henry engaged in the wholesale dry goods business, and retired some years before his death with a fortune of about one million dollars.

Having no children of his own, in his will he made liberal provision for all of his brothers and sisters, or their descendants, and it is a pleasure to record that those now living speak of him with the greatest regard and esteem.

He is said to have been a very firm and yet a kind man, and a thorough churchman, but had a strong distaste for politics and would never accept any public position.

In 1855 to 1857 he built the beautiful home at Goshen, N. Y., of which see illustration.

After he retired from business he devoted a large part of his time to promoting the interests of Trinity Church, and aided in defeating the Anneke Jans heirs in obtaining possession of the church property. He also had nearly the entire charge of the erection of Trinity Chapel at 26th street, N. Y., and at the time of his death he was the oldest vestryman of Trinity Church.

When the British took possession of New York City in 1776, he retired to New Rochelle, where he died. His family then removed to Orange County, where they remained until his son John became of age. About the time of the Revolution the name of the family was changed from De Yong to Young.

Adrian De Yong's son John married Catherine Creamer, the daughter of Major Creamer, a British officer residing in New York.

a Catherine Young was descended from Adrian De Yong, who came to America before the Revolution and resided in Crown street, opposite Temple street, New York City. He was of Huguenot extraction and warmly espoused the cause of the American Revolution, bearing arms in its defense.

Hiram Youngs, in 1809, at the age of fourteen years, in company with his brothers, Henry and Oliver, left the homestead farm at Goshen, and went to New York City, where he became a clerk in a dry goods house on Broadway. Later he went into that business for himself, but retired from it in 1831, and went into the wholesale clothing business in partnership with his brother-in-law, J. F. Conant, under the firm name of Conant and Youngs, in Pearl street. They were burned out completely in the great fire of 1835, even the safe containing their books being destroyed, and being unable to collect their accounts they were ruined financially. His health broke down, but after a long sickness he partially recovered, and thereafter was a clerk in his brother Henry's dry goods store until his death.

During the early part of his life he was a member of a militia regiment of New York City.

After his marriage he resided on the N. E. corner of Broadway and Reade street, and there his son Henry was born. Later he moved to 31 Reade street, which is now occupied by the Stewart Building. In 1830 he moved to Hudson street, and from thence to Greenwich street, where his daughters Charlotte and Elizabeth were born.*

John Eliott Young was born on the farm at Middle Road, two miles east of Riverhead, L. I., which he inherited from his father, and which is now in possession of his son Orville Young. He received a public school education, and then conducted the farm until the breaking out of the Rebellion. On Feb. 4, 1864, he enlisted in Co. I, 8th N. Y. Heavy Artillery, and was attached to the Army of the Potomac under Gen. Grant. He participated in the battles of Spottsylvania, Wilderness, Pittsburgh, Reams Station, Cold Harbor, and others, and after Lee evacuated Richmond, his regiment was in close pursuit, and was present at the surrender at Appomattox. At the battle of Cold Harbor he was wounded in the left groin, and was left on the battle field from sunrise until after dark. Two months later he rejoined his regiment, but was absent in the hospital again with an attack of typhoid fever. He accompanied his regiment to Alexandria, and was in the Grand Review down Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington. On Sept. 20th, 1865, he was mustered out, and returned to the farm at Middle Road.

In 1886, he removed to Riverhead, where he established a planing and moulding mill and lumber business in which he was very successful, and a few years since he built one of the finest residences in the town.

He was a Republican in politics, a Grand Army man, and charter member of Henry A. Barnum Post, Royal Arch Mason, having been Master of the Lodge, and Senior Dean twenty years. He was assessor for nine years, and in him Riverhead lost a patriotic, enterprising and honorable citizen.

†Rec., Mrs. Cordelia Y. Willard.

Rev. Emerson K. Young, D.D., was educated in the public schools of Syracuse, N. Y. (where he spent his boyhood), and took a college preparatory course in Cazenovia Seminary.

He entered Cornell College, Mount Vernon, Ia., graduating in the classical course in 1862. He joined the Upper Iowa Conference the following year and, after an itinerancy of twenty years in a number of the most important churches of the Upper Iowa and Des Moines Conferences, he was transferred to East Ohio Conference, and stationed at Akron, Ohio, where he remained three years.

In 1888 he was appointed to Grace Church, Philadelphia, Pa., where he remained four years, after which he was transferred to New York East Conference, and appointed to the First Methodist Episcopal Church, New Britain, Conn. He did a large and efficient work in these fields, but, warned by continued ill health, he reluctantly resigned his care of this church in October, 1896, after spending more than thirty years in active service for the Master and the following month he died.

In the summer of 1880 he traveled in Europe, and by means of the press, delighted his friends with vivid accounts of old world customs and characters. On his return he published a neat, racy little book entitled "Bright Days Abroad," which gives an idea of his charm of style and manner.

He was also the author of another volume, "The Biographers of Christ." Bishop Hurst, in his note of introduction to this book, says of the author: "He has studied closely in this beautiful and enchanting field, and now gives to the world the benefit of his labors."

He was also in demand on the lecture platform, and received the highest commendations of the press.

Had he possessed the constitution to have continued his activities he would have been still more widely known, but into this seemingly short life he had put the strength and devotion of his mind and soul, and his work was done.

Probably not since our ancestors came to this country has the family produced a man of a higher type mentally, morally and spiritually.

In person he was rather under medium size, with dark hair and eyes and rather sharp features. The first impression he made on you was that he was a man of purpose, and when he clasped your hand you felt that he was your friend.

He was a man of varied talents, and having both wit and humor, was the life and charm of the family and social circles.

In manner he was cheerful, earnest and magnetic, and invariably won all hearts; but it was as a preacher and winner of souls that he was pre-eminent.

He was not only a fluent speaker, but possessed the gift of oratory, and whether in the pulpit or on the platform he could reach all classes and arouse their interest or kindle them to enthusiasm.

Wherever he went he made hosts of friends, and has left behind him the fragrance of a noble life and an ideal set high for others to emulate.

In 1883 Allegheny College conferred on him the title of D.D., and a few years before his death he visited Southold, Long Island, where Rev. John Youngs, his first American ancestor, lies buried and where his name, with many others of this generation, is inscribed on a monument to commemorate the 250th year of the settlement of Southold. (See portrait.)

6 Edith Amanda Hallock, b. 26 Jan., 1903; d. 12 Aug., 1904.

7 Addison Howard Hallock, b. 6 Aug., 1904.

James Halsey Young inherited from his father part of the original farm which John Budd gave to his daughter Mary, who married Christopher³ Youngs, and here still resides. He was educated at the Franklinville Academy, taught school, and then turned his attention to farming, which he has followed successfully. In politics he is a Republican, having joined that party at the start.

For many years he has been a deacon of the Congregational Church of Aquebogue, L. I., and one of its most liberal contributors. He was a Justice of the Peace for thirty years, and was also one of the organizers of the Riverhead Savings Bank, and still is a trustee.

*His Record.

JAMES HALSEY YOUNG

Mr. Young is a man of ability and great judgment and common sense, and throughout a busy life has exerted a marked influence for good in the community. His unselfishness and devotion to his family has always been one of his strong traits; no sacrifice was too great for him to make that his children should have a thorough education, and all of them received either a college or academic training under his direction (see portrait).

Hon. Henry W. Young, in 1874, removed from Long Island to Illinois, where for some years he was editor and publisher of the "Galva Journal." In 1881 he removed to Independence, Kan., where he publishes "The Times," a daily newspaper. He has been a State Senator of Kansas for four years, and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Independence. In politics, he has usually acted with either the Democratic or Populist organizations, but in principle he believes in public ownership to an extent that makes him class himself as a Socialist. Daniel Rufus Young inherited the farm of one hundred acres at Northville, L. I., which has been in the family for seven generations, and in addition to farming he is engaged in the produce business, firm of Fanning & Young, at Riverhead, where he now resides. He is a Mason of high standing in Lodge No. 645, Riverhead; an Odd Fellow, having passed all chairs, and a member of the Royal Arcanum. In politics he is a Democrat, and, in 1892, was elected Justice of the Peace, the first of that party to fill that office in twenty years. He has been a Justice of the Court of Sessions, and is a member of the Congregational Church of Northville.

Although a young man, he is one of the most enterprising and foremost citizens of that locality.

1200 CHARLES HERBERT,^{9*} (George,⁸ Nathan,⁷ Rufus,⁶ Daniel,⁵ Christopher,⁴⁻³ Rev. John,² Rev. Christopher¹), b. Brooklyn, N. Y., 30 Jan., 1860; res. New Rochelle, N. Y.; m. 30 Apl., 1884, Maud (dau. of George) Ferguson; b. 8 Sept., 1863.

Charles Herbert Young is one of the leading lawyers of the State of New York. He was admitted to the bar in February, 1881, at the early age of twenty-one years, and on the first of May following commenced practising on his own account in the city of New York and in New Rochelle, Westchester County, where he resides. He was successful from the start, and soon became prominent in the legal fraternity. In 1890 he formed the law firm of C. H. & J. A. Young, which (with addition of other members) has continued to the present time, and conducted a large business in civil cases with marked success.

Mr. Young was the leading counsel, next to Joseph H. Choate, in the Seaman case, which was in the courts of New York for thirteen or fourteen years, and decided in his favor; and he was sole counsel in the great State Constitutional case of in re Henneberger, reported in 155th New York Reports, which was decided in his favor by the full court, on a vote standing four to three.

He is a great reader and student, has an exceptionally retentive memory, and is a particularly fine historical scholar. His mental equipment is rare; his mind acts with great celerity and precision, and his judgment on legal and other questions is much sought after and relied upon.

His executive ability is of the first order and he handles large matters easily and brings them to a successful conclusion.

His knowledge of human nature is remarkable; he makes friends easily, and probably knows more people than any one in his city.

As a citizen he is public-spirited, and has been the leader in many movements in his city for public parks and improvements for the betterment of the community.

In politics he is a strong Republican and cast his first vote for Blaine. He takes an active interest in the success of the party, and has recently been elected President of the Republican Club of New York city.

He has never been a political candidate, and the only office he has held was that of Deputy Attorney General, to which he was appointed by Gov. Morton in 1895.

In physique he is solidly built, with a massive head that is in harmony with his strong and aggressive character, and although a man of positive opinions, he is frank and open, and none need misunderstand him.

As a neighbor and friend, he is held in high esteem, and he has helped many young men to make their start in law or business. (See portrait.)

Willis Howard Young obtained his education at the Franklinville Academy, L. I., and afterwards took a course at Eastman's Business College, from which he graduated in 1865. Coming to New York, he filled the position of clerk and bookkeeper for some years, after which he engaged in the manufacture of sashes, blinds and doors in Long Island City. By good judgment and careful attention to details, he built up a prosperous business, and retired in 1903. He had other interests, and his natural business ability and activity of mind kept him in business circles which led him with others to found the Long Island Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, of Jamaica, L. I., of which he became the president.

He is a man of pleasing address, makes friends easily, and is one of the leading citizens of Jamaica, L. I., where he makes his home.

David Terry Young, when not attending the district school or Franklinville Academy, worked on the farm at Mattituck until he was twenty-two years of age. He then took a course at Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and came to N. Y. City, where he was with a sugar importing house for several years. For two years he was in the produce business on his own account, and since then he has been with Burdette & Dennis, auctioneers, in Burling Slip.

Soon after his first marriage, he and his wife joined Plymouth Church, and his wife, who had a beautiful contralto voice, was the leading alto in the volunteer choir. His distinguishing trait is his faculty for making friends. He has dropped the final s from his name. (For portrait, see group on p. 240.)

Selah Youngs, Jr., in 1849 removed from Sag Harbor to Mattituck, L. I., with his father's family. He received his education at the West Mattituck

a Mrs. Josephine Sprott Youngs was graduated from Packer Institute, Brooklyn, in the class of 1873. She joined the Puritan Church, and later removed to New York, where she was active in church work, a member of the choir, and of the Mendelssohn Musical Society. After her marriage she united with the Congregational Church of Montclair, N. J., and for several years was a member of the Ladies' Vocal Club. She is of Scotch descent, and her maiden name is a familiar one in Edinburgh, Scotland.

District School, and the Franklinville Academy, and worked on the farm during vacations. In the fall of 1864 he went to Poughkeepsie and took a course in Eastman's Business College. On graduating from that he obtained a situation as collector for a mill in New York City, and lived in Brooklyn. This was the year in which Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, and when his remains lay in state in the City Hall, New York, he was one of the great throng who looked on the features of the martyred President.

The following year he went with H. A. Brayton into the grain commission business, and remained with him for six years, except for two seasons, when he was in that business in Buffalo, N. Y. While with Mr. Brayton he became a member of the N. Y. Produce Exchange, and for some years was the youngest wholesale grain salesman on the Exchange. In 1871 he went with the firm of A. E. Kent & Co., in the same business, and in 1875 was taken into the firm, and through various changes continued a member until it dissolved in 1886. In 1883 it did the largest business in that line of any firm in New York, but in the panic of 1884 it sustained large losses, which, owing to increased competition and the failing health of Mr. Kent, were never recouped. Since 1886 he has continued in the business in his own name.

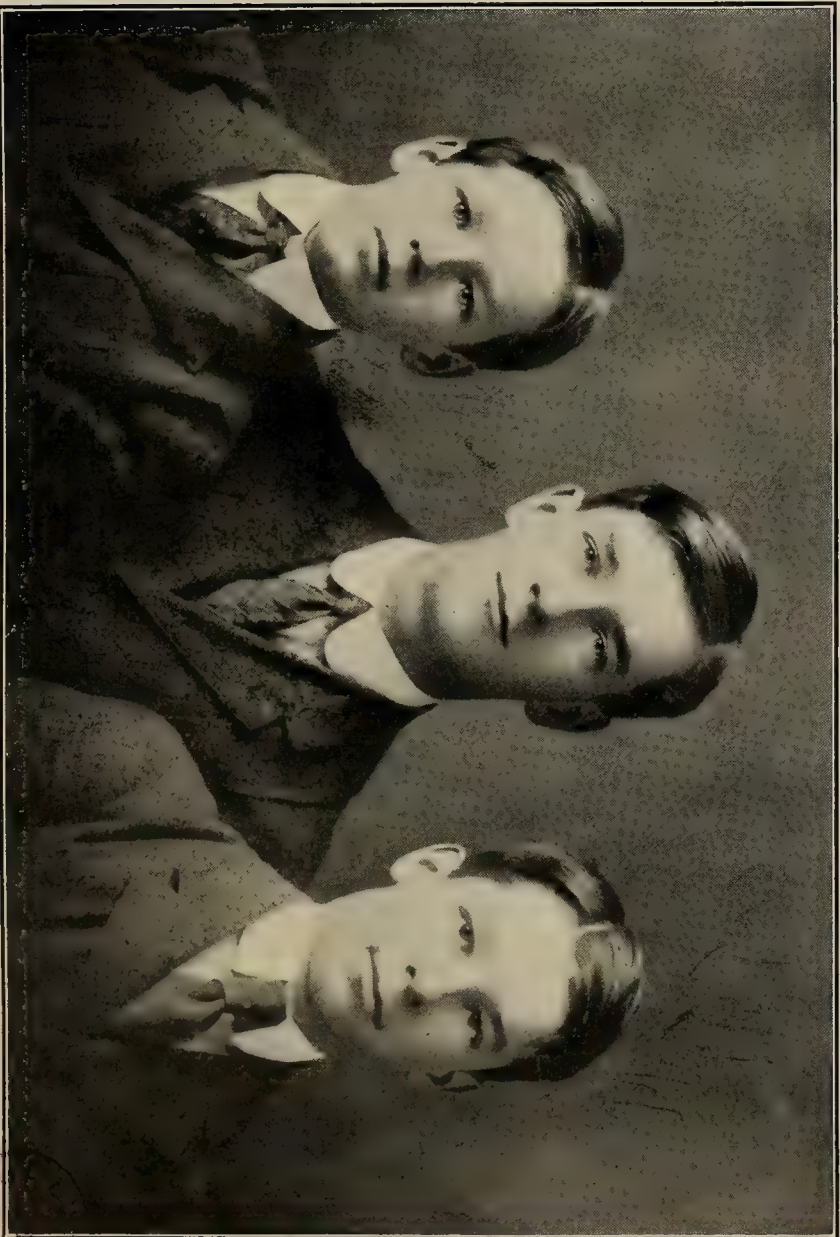

The second year he was in Brooklyn he joined Plymouth Church, of which the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was pastor, and for eight years taught in the Sabbath School. While he lived in Brooklyn he was a member of the Franklin Literary Society, of which he was President one term, and Secretary of the Kings County Central Temperance Association, representing all the temperance societies of that county.

In politics he has always been a Republican, and cast his first vote for General Grant, with whom he had the pleasure of shaking hands on a Sabbath when the General attended service at Plymouth Church.

In 1884 he removed to Montclair, N. J., where the following spring he bought a residence on Mountain Avenue, where he still resides. After the death of Mr. Beecher he took his letter from Plymouth Church to the First Congregational Church of Montclair, and became a teacher in the Sabbath School there.

He has a cottage on part of the Youngs farm at Mattituck, where amid the scenes of his happy boyhood he delights in spending the summers with his family. His descent from Rev. John, Col. John, and Capt. David Youngs and Col. Thomas Terry entitles him to membership in all the societies of Colonial and Revolutionary times.

The family name, as handed down in his branch, is spelled "Youngs," but in the past two generations several families have dropped the final "s," and he has frequently left it off in signing his name. (For portrait, see frontispiece.)

John David Youngs was educated at the public school, and then learned the blacksmith's trade of his father, and continued in business with him until twenty-four years of age, when he engaged in the livery business for a time. For the past twelve years he has conducted a dairy business. He is a member of the "Jr. Order United American Mechanics, Seaside Council, No. 81," and is now "Counselor." He joined the M. E. Church when a youth, was a trustee for a number of years, and now holds the office of steward. He is one of the progressive men of Westhampton Beach, L. I., and in politics is a Democrat.

1806* ii EDWARD LEWIS,¹⁰ b. 17 Dec., 1861; m. Mary Sybil Eager.

Edward Faitaute Condit Young was born in the old homestead of three generations of his ancestors, near Morristown, N. J. His father died when he was seven years of age, and when he was nine the family removed to Jersey City, where on Nov. 1, 1852, he entered the Hudson County Bank as a clerk.

Equipped with a fair education, and inheriting a good constitution and the strong mental and moral qualities of a line of worthy ancestors, he met the full requirements of every position and his course was steadily upward.

On June 20th, 1864, he accepted a position in the First National Bank of Jersey City, and was promoted to cashier on January 1st, 1871. On September 1st, 1879, he was made President of that bank, which position he still holds.

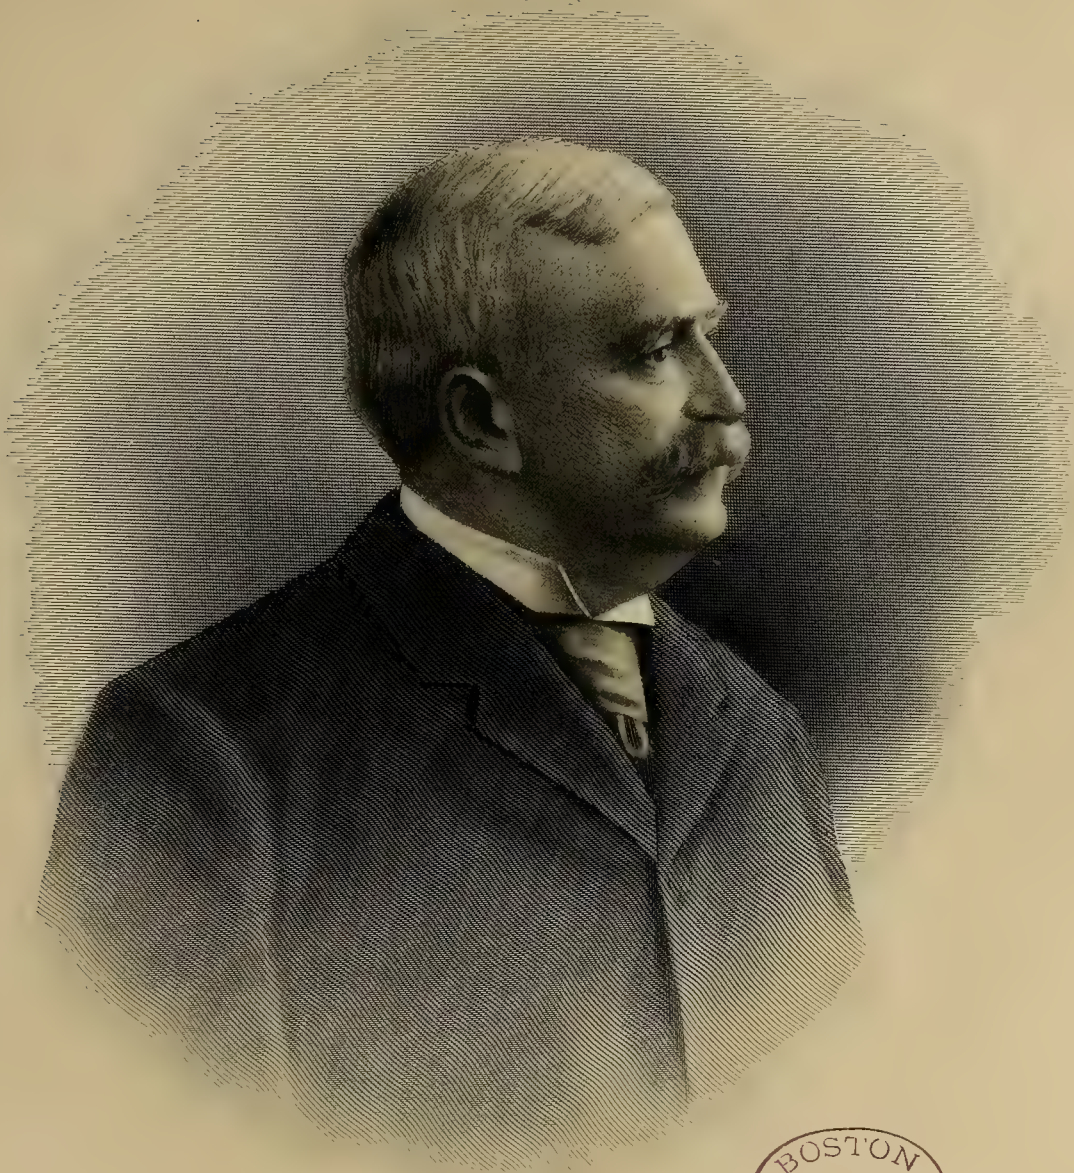

He is the most accessible man in the bank, and his mind acts with such quickness that it is doubtful if he is excelled in the rapid dispatch of business.

Having acquired a thorough education in banking and finance, he became a large factor in financial circles, both in New Jersey and New York. His co-operation has been sought by many large enterprises, and he is now an officer or director in more than thirty institutions, and is recognized as the leading financier in the State.

In politics he has always been a Democrat, but has held no office, although it has only needed his consent to make him the Democratic candidate for Governor.

In his prosperity he has not been unmindful of the needs of the Church, or of those who have been less fortunate, and unostentatiously but freely he has lent the helping hand, and it will not soon be forgotten that during the coal strike of the winter of 1902-3, it was his generosity that kept the fires lit in more than a thousand homes in Jersey City.

Mr. Young is the lineal descendent of three ministers, one of whom (Rev. John Young) was the founder of Southold, L. I., and of Ephraim Young, who was in the State militia during the Revolutionary War. He is a member of the New Jersey Society of the Order of the Founders and Patriots of America, and is entitled to membership in the "Sons of the Revolution."

MRS. GEORGE F. SMITH

NEE HATTIE LOUISE YOUNG

Although of Puritan stock, he joined the Methodist Church in 1863, but later became a member of the congregation of St. John's Episcopal Church, of Jersey City, of which he was a vestryman for twenty-five years.

His home life is an ideal one, and the exactions of business have not lessened his enjoyment of the society of his friends. The history of the Youngs family has always been a matter of special interest to him. He has had an honorable pride in the good name of the family, and the author is more indebted to him than any other person in the publication of this volume.

In 1900 he had the lettering recut on the tomb of his ancestor, Rev. John Youngs, at Southold, Long Island.

In a business career extending over half a century, he has not only achieved success, but is held in high esteem, and is regarded as Jersey City's "First Citizen." (See portrait.)

HON. WILLIAM J. YOUNGS

Hon. William Jones Youngs is an only child, and the only male descendant of his grandfather, Daniel Youngs, and with one exception (Graham Youngs, No. 1825) is the only living male descendant of Samuel,⁴ son of the first Thomas Youngs³ of Oyster Bay.

William J. Youngs graduated from the Huntington High School in 1868, and entered Cornell University on October 3d of that year, graduating with the degree of B. S. in 1872, and was one of the speakers for the Woodford gold medal during that year. He immediately began the study of the law, and on September 1, 1873, was admitted to the bar in the Supreme Court of the Second Judicial Department. He became active in political life immediately on his admission to the bar, served as a delegate to the State Convention in 1876, and was elected a member of the Assembly for Queens County in 1879 and 1880. For several years he was chairman of the Republican County Committee. He was elected district attorney of Queens County in 1896, the first Republican ever elected to that office in Queens County, and was secretary to the Governor (Roosevelt) from 1899 to 1901, Deputy Superintendent of Banks from October, 1901, to December, 1902, and was appointed by President Roosevelt the United States Attorney for the Eastern District of New York on December 22, 1902, and still holds that important position. He retains the character of his ancestors for uprightness of life and probity of character, and in all the positions he has filled has commended himself alike to his superior officers and to the people he has served. He is a man of considerable literary ability, a ready writer, and fluent and polished extemporaneous speaker. (See portrait.)

Henry Youngs was born at the corner of Reade St. and Broadway, New York, and when a boy attended Columbia College, but when his father was burned out in the great fire of 1835 he left college and helped to support the family.

He entered the dry goods store of his uncle, Henry Youngs, as a clerk, and remained there until about 1846, when he went South with his mother's brother, William Young, who later settled at Columbus, Ga., and built the Eagle and Phoenix Cotton Mills. After being with him a year or so, he conducted a general store at Apalachicola, Florida, but not being able to stand the climate, about 1850 he returned to New York, and went with Frost & Forest into the grain and produce business.

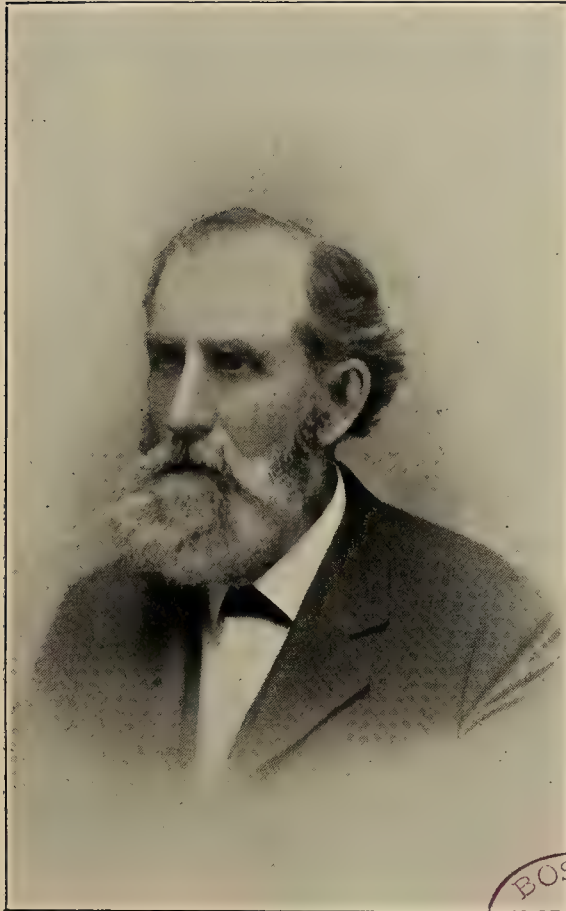

In 1855 he engaged in that business on his own account, and became a member of the N. Y. Produce Exchange.

After his marriage, he went to Brooklyn and lived in Jay Street, until he bought the house No. 191 President Street, where all of his children except Henry were born.

From his uncle, Henry Youngs, who died in 1868, he inherited several pieces of property in New York City, the homestead farm at Goshen, and the family pew in Trinity Church, New York. A couple of years later he retired from business, but retained his membership in the Produce Exchange.

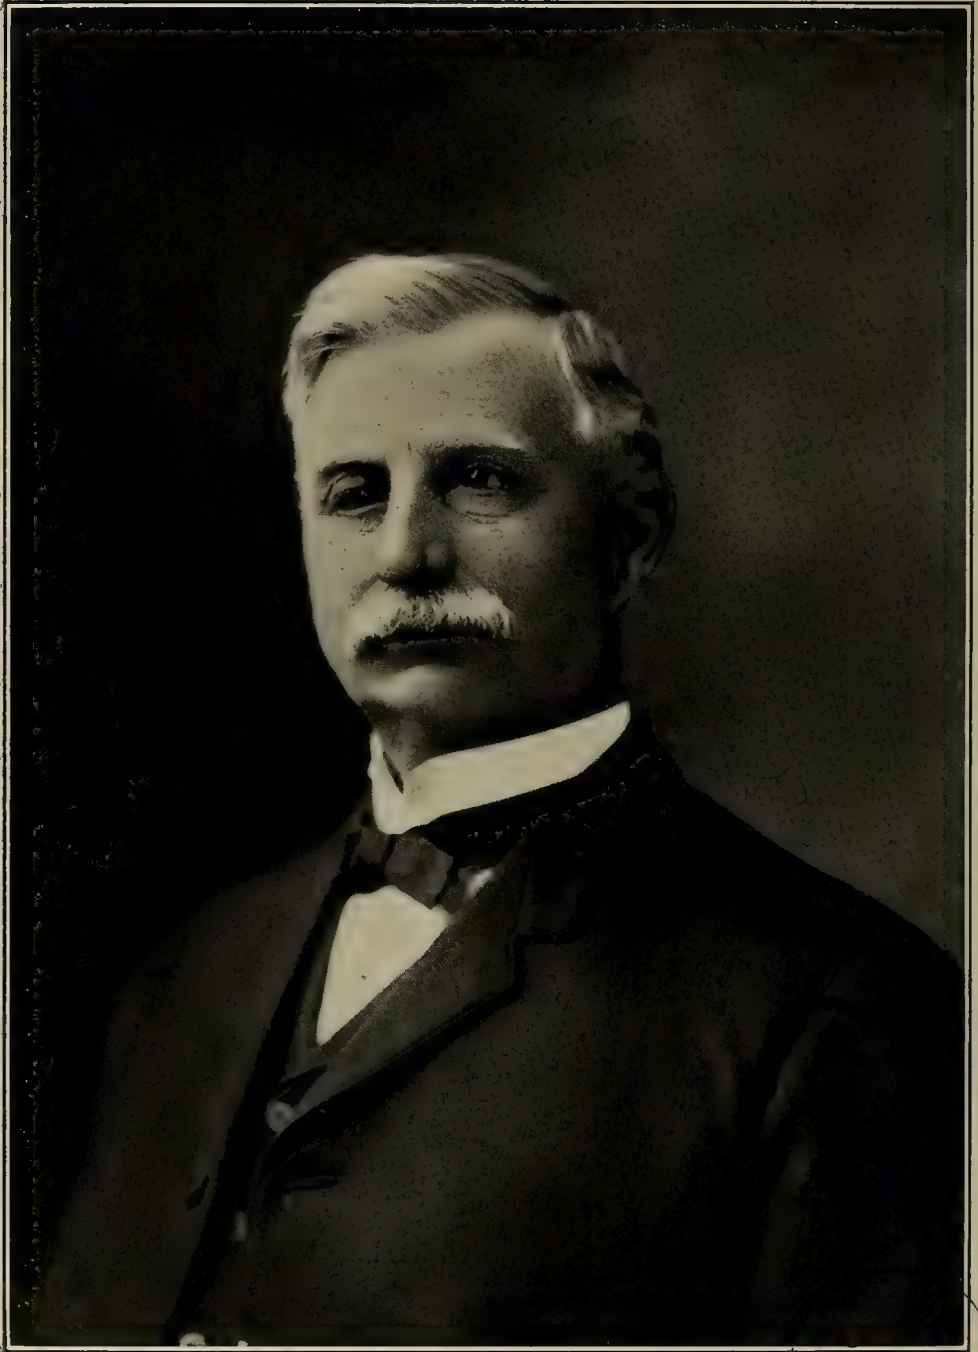

He moved his residence to the farm at Goshen, where as a boy he had spent much of his time with his grandmother, and to which he was much attached. He identified himself with the place, and always voted there, although he kept his house in Brooklyn, and spent the mid-winter months there in order that his children might attend school.

He devoted most of his time to his farm, and lived the life of a retired country gentleman. He died from injuries received by a fall. (See portrait.)

Henry Youngs graduated from Forrest and Quackenboss' Collegiate School, corner of 6th Avenue and 14th Street, New York, and was engaged in mercantile pursuits until the breaking out of the Civil War, when he enlisted in Company B, 9th Illinois Cavalry, on September 19th, 1861.

He served with that regiment in the Army of the Southwest under Generals Frank Steele, Samuel R. Curtis, Benton, Washburn, Hatch and Sherman; and after participating in all of the hard fought engagements of that army, was mustered out at Springfield, Illinois, on September 23rd, 1864. On the 4th of April, 1865, he re-enlisted in Company E, 6th Regiment of United States Veteran Volunteers, a corps of old soldiers who had served three years and had been honorably discharged. He was appointed Orderly Sergeant of his company and served the year of his enlistment.

During the encampment of his regiment at Washington, he happened to be in Ford's Theatre the night Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, witnessed that sad occurrence, and took an active part in the arrest of John Wilkes Booth. He was mustered out of the service at Washington on April 3rd, 1866, after a service of four years. In May, 1865, he participated in the Grand Review of the troops in Washington.

After being mustered out of the service, he settled in Geneseo, Ill., where his parents then resided.

On account of Mrs. Youngs' declining health, Henry Youngs, the subject of this sketch, moved with his family to Colorado in 1885. Mrs. Youngs died in Denver on March 14th, 1890. On November 15th, 1894, Mr. Youngs married Miss Jessie A. Hart. He is still a resident of Denver, and for many years held the office of Park Commissioner, an office of honor and trust; has been a prominent member of George Washington Post No. 85 of the Grand Army of the Republic; member of the Episcopal Church since he was fifteen years of age, and at the present time is one of the wardens of St. Peter's Church, Denver. He is also an Election Commissioner for the County of Denver, having been elected this year for a term of four years by a large popular vote. (See portrait.)

Jeremiah Young, or "Uncle Jerry," as he had long been called by his acquaintances, learned the trade of carpenter and was an expert and finished workman, whose motto was "What is worth doing, had best be done well."

In the old days of "general training" he was captain of a company of State Militia, and made a fine looking officer. Some sixty years ago he joined the Methodist Church of Orient, and for many years was chorister. He filled many offices in the church, and was a prominent class leader and exhorter. He was a man of sterling character, and one of the best of friends.

James Henry Young learned the trade of carpenter and builder and succeeded his father in the building trade. He erected several fine residences on Eastern Long Island, also the Prospect Hotel on Shelter Island. Later in life he retired from this occupation and engaged extensively in market gardening.

At the outbreak of the Rebellion, when Stewart L. Woodford was at the east end of Long Island raising a regiment, he enlisted as a private in Company "H" 127th Regt. N. Y. Vols. He was successively promoted 2nd Lieut., 1st Lieut., and to the command of his company, and after two years of active service was mustered out on account of physical disability.

Mr. Young is one of the most prominent men in Orient, and is always found taking an active part in every important question concerning the public good.

For many years he was an active member of the Congregational Church; the leader of the choir for twenty-two years, and Superintendent of the Sunday School, but from these pleasing associations he subsequently withdrew, having embraced the Unitarian faith.

James Henry Young

Lieutenant Young's particular pride was and still is the Orient Soldiers' Monument, which he designed and, with the generous aid of his fellow townspeople, erected on "Peters Hill," in June, 1870, and fittingly dedicated to the memory of the boys from Orient who gave their lives to their country in the War of the Rebellion.

In May, 1906, Mr. Young had the supreme pleasure of having this beautiful monument moved to a more desirable location in the village, at the junction of Main street and the "King's Highway," where, on Decoration Day of that year, it was rededicated with fitting honors in loving remembrance by the six surviving members, and their comrades of the G. A. R. (See portrait.)

Dr. Howard Halsey Young was educated for the medical profession at the Franklinville Academy and the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York, from which latter he graduated in 1884. Following this, he was on the House Staff of the Charity Hospital for eighteen months, at the conclusion of which he took up his residence in Riverhead, L. I., where he soon built up a large practice as physician and surgeon.

HON. JAMES ADDISON YOUNG

In recent years he gave special attention to affections of the eye, ear and throat, and became very skilful in their treatment.

Dr. Young was prominent in the Suffolk County Medical Society, having served as its secretary, and had also been medical examiner for the Riverhead Council, Royal Arcanum, of which he was a member.

In his profession he found many opportunities to be of benefit to his fellow man, where there could be no pecuniary return, and it was always pleasure to him to give his aid.

Dr. Young had an engaging personality, and his genial manner and upright manhood drew men to him and won their confidence and esteem. He was also actively interested in the work of the Congregational Church of Riverhead and a member of its Board of Deacons.

Without any apparent disease, his close attention to his professional duties and solicitude over important cases caused a nervous exhaustion which brought to a close his short but useful life. (See portrait.)

Hon. James Addison Young is a Young on both his father's and mother's side. He received his early education at the public school of his native town and at the Franklinville Academy, after which he entered Williams College and graduated in the class of 1888.

He then took a course at the Columbia Law School, New York, and was admitted to the bar in December, 1889. He immediately began practicing in New Rochelle, N. Y., in connection with Charles H. Young, under the firm name of C. H. & J. A. Young. This firm has done a large and increasing business, and has become one of the leading law firms in Greater New York.

Mr. Young is possessed of an extraordinarily well balanced mind, and is considered the leader of the Westchester Bar. He is probably the greatest trial lawyer in that county, and his conduct of criminal trials has called forth the praise of the Court of Appeals for its fairness and ability.

*His Record.

In politics he is a strong Republican, is prominent in the leadership of the party, and has twice been elected District Attorney of Westchester County, serving from 1902 to 1907.

He has taken an active interest in local affairs, and been a member of the Board of Education for the past six years.

Mr. Young is a Freemason and a member of the Presbyterian Church. (See portrait.)

*His Record.

James F. Young attended the public school of his native place from 1848 until 1861; and the Northville Academy, Joseph N. Hallock, M.A., Principal, for the winter term of 1861-2. On Sept. 5th, 1862, when under twenty years of age, he enlisted in the 2nd N. Y. Vol. Cavalry (Harris Light Cav.), and went to the war.

He was in several skirmishes and was slightly wounded, but in the first Battle of Fredericksburg, early in December, 1862, he was struck in the knee by a ball, which rendered further service impossible, and in March, 1863, he was discharged.

For several years thereafter he was engaged in farming and stock raising in Southern Michigan. Selling out there, he returned East, and followed the sea until 1876, mainly in the West Indian and South American trade; and still holds a first-class license as steamboat pilot.

He then secured a responsible position in a large metal-working firm, which he held until 1882, when he entered the building trade at Manhasset, N. Y., where he still resides.

With indomitable courage, he has fought the battle of life on the firing line, until (largely as the result of his wound) he is physically disabled, except for the partial use of one arm, but possessed of an active mind, and sustained by a majestic faith, he still uses the pen, and the author is indebted to him for arranging the index for this book. (See portrait.)

Capt. Ira Benjamin Young attended the public school and worked on his father's farm at Roanoke, L. I., until he was eighteen years of age, when he shipped on a schooner from Port Jefferson, L. I. He then went on a tug in New York Harbor, and later bought out the captain's interest and ran it himself.

He next became an owner in the White Star Towing Co., and was its senior captain, but withdrew from it in 1885 and organized the Huntington and Norwalk and Bridgeport Steam Ferry Co., and was elected treasurer. At the time of his death he commanded the steamer Huntington. He was a Republican in politics and a member of the Presbyterian Church of Huntington, where he was held in high esteem.

Joseph Youngs was born in 1732, and the record of his marriage in 1755 states that he was "of Mattituck," Long Island. About 1759 he removed to Hanover, N. J., where he engaged in farming.

His grandson, Joseph Lindsley Youngs (who was only fourteen years of age when his father died), has handed down the tradition that his ancestor who came to America was a young Scotchman, who came down to Edinburgh with cattle and, when walking along the street, after selling them, he was seized by an English press gang and put on board a war ship, which sailed for America. When near the coast of Long Island, in the night, he jumped overboard and swam seven miles to the shore, losing his money in the water.

When Joseph Youngs removed to Hanover, he settled among the descendants of Robert Young (who came from Scotland), and for a second wife married his granddaughter, Phebe Young. The tradition evidently is from her family, but Joseph Youngs doubtless was a descendant of the Long Island Youngs.

His will (1789) names children, Grover Youngs, John Youngs and Katurah Marsh.

a The only knowledge we have of Alexander Youngs¹ is from the Flushing, L. I., Friends' records of his death, and from the Westbury, L. I., Friends' records, which state that the Alexander Youngs who married Sarah Coles, was the son of Alexander Youngs, deceased. The final "s" to his surname is an indication that he is descended from the Long Island Youngs, and it is quite probable that he was a son of Joseph (son of Capt. Joseph) Youngs, of Southold, L. I., of whose family we have a very incomplete record (see p. 55).

His son Alexander² was a witness to deeds and wills in Hempstead, L. I., from 1720 to 1753, and in 1753 he sold his home and lands there, took a certificate from the Friends of Westbury to the Friends of Purchase, or Mamaroneck, N. Y., and, with his wife and young children, removed to New Castle, N. Y., his older children following later. In 1758, Letters of Administration were granted to his widow, Sarah Youngs. She m. (2) Joseph Haight. Her will, 1775, proved 1787, names six married dau's., bequeathing them money, sons Elijah, John, and James Youngs, and grandson Alexander Youngs, bequeathing each one-quarter of her estate. (N. Y. Wills.)

Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll, who is descended on her mother's line from James Youngs,³ discovered the records of the first two Alexander Youngs, and Mrs. Nicoll, Mr. Evelyn B. Baldwin, and the author have traced most of the descendants, but too late to embody in this work.
